Senate Probers To Investigate Orange County Roads

COMMITTEE PLANS VISIT NEXT WEEK

Seven Roads Proposed for Inclusion in Secondary Highway System Object

MEETS NEXT TUESDAY

Administration of State School at Whittier to Be Investigated Also

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 10.—(UP)—Meeting today for the last time before adjournment to Los Angeles and Orange county, the senate investigation committee continued its inquiry into state financial transactions and the leasing of the San Francisco state building annex.

Following the adjournment this afternoon the committee members plan to visit the new hospital site in Ventura county and then investigate the seven roads in Orange county proposed for inclusion in the state secondary highway system.

The committee will open its southern hearings in Los Angeles Tuesday to mark the opening of the inquiry into the hospital site purchase and administration of affairs at Whittier state school, it was announced.

A. F. Hockenbeamer, San Francisco, president of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., told the investigating committee that Governor Rolph had expressed a desire that he "get acquainted" with the governor's son, James Rolph III.

"The governor, however, never asked me to place any insurance with his son," said Hockenbeamer. "I told him I would be glad to meet the young man, and shortly afterward James Rolph III called on me at the office and gave me the usual salesman's talk."

"As a result of the governor's conversation, did you later give him some business?" asked Sheridan Downey, attorney for the committee.

Hockenbeamer replied that he reorganized the P. G. & E.'s fidelity bond business "about that time," and that the firm of Rolph, Landis and Ellis shared in the business.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Continued cold weather is in prospect for Southern California tomorrow, the United States weather bureau announced, although today's minimum temperatures were one to two degrees above yesterday's low marks.

There is no indication of rain to dissipate the cold wave, the weather bureau said.

Today's lowest mark was 25 degrees at San Bernardino, with 26 degree lows reported at Imperial, and 28 at Redlands and Pomona.

There is still 50 inches of snow at the summit of Mt. Wilson, despite daytime temperatures to 40 degrees, the weather bureau said.

Reports from the Imperial Valley said the hay crop was destroyed, and no shipments of new hay were expected before April 1. The extreme cold, which 17 degrees two days ago, killed off the new crop.

JAPAN REPLIES NEGATIVELY TO LEAGUE QUERY

Decision Expected to End Efforts to Conciliate Manchuria Dispute

TOKIO, Feb. 10.—(UP)—The cabinet met in extraordinary session today and reportedly decided upon a negative reply to the question of the League of Nations' committee of 19 as to whether Japan would agree to nominal Chinese sovereignty over Manchuria.

The decision was expected to cause the final breakdown in the League's efforts to conciliate the Sino-Japanese dispute.

It was understood Foreign Minister Yasuya Uchida was advising Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's representative at Geneva, to deliver the cabinet's reply to the League at once.

A formal reply, including a re-statement of Japan's position in the Manchurian question, will be telegraphed to Matsuoka shortly, it was understood. Upon its delivery to the League, it was generally believed Matsuoka and the Japanese delegation would be ordered home.

The view of the committee of 19 that any settlement of the Sino-Japanese situation on a conciliatory basis would be unacceptable unless Japan agreed to China's nominal sovereignty in Manchuria was coldly received in government circles.

The cabinet meeting at which the foreign minister explained the situation was brief, indicating that the committee's action had been expected. Unofficial spokesmen predicted Japan's withdrawal from the League would be announced within a month.

Meanwhile, a renewal of hostilities between Japan and Chinese troops appeared at close hand. Green clad Nipponese soldiers were speeding to the border of Jehol and Mukden provinces, where Chinese forces were reported to have attacked and burned two villages.

Japanese claimed the attackers belonged to the army of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, young Chinese war lord, massed in Jehol province. The captured villages were in Mukden province, which is a part of Manchuria.

In view of the statement from the war office earlier in the week that Japanese troops shortly would begin their campaign to "police" Jehol, it was believed the present incident coupled with the breakdown of negotiations at Geneva might hasten the renewal of Sino-Japanese hostilities.

Japan contends Jehol is a part of the "independent state" of Manchukuo. This view is vigorously contested by China and has caused Chinese troops to be concentrated in the province to defend it against Japanese invasion.

MOULTON DECLARES RECALL MOVE DEAD

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 10.—(UP)—Dudley Moulton, state director of agriculture, today said he believed the state grange's recall movement against Governor Rolph was "definitely dead."

Returning here following a meeting of the state board of agriculture at San Francisco, Moulton said he believed the recall movement had failed because the "rank and file" had not favored the proposal.

Moulton vigorously denied he had any intention of resigning from his post as director of agriculture.

MILK STRIKE WILL START WEDNESDAY

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(UP)—A statewide milk strike in Wisconsin, called to start next Wednesday, presented the most serious problem of farm unrest in the middle-west today. Continued sub-zero weather forestalled mortgage foreclosure sales and the disorder that has attended them in recent weeks. In northern Iowa, however, funeral plans were made for the first victim of the current farmers' revolt. Ruel D. Markell, wounded last Friday by pickets who halted a milk truck he was driving to a Sioux City market, died in a Sioux City hospital. Two sons wounded at the same time have recovered.

DUTCH MUTINY SHIP IS TAKEN AFTER BOMBING

Aerial Bomb Dropped; 18 Members of Crew Are Reported Killed

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Feb. 10.—(UP)—An aerial bomb spread death on the Dutch warship De Zeven Provinciën in the East Indies today, ending a mutiny almost unique in naval history.

The bomb killed 18 men and wounded 25. The remaining mutineers, approximately 100 men, surrendered to the naval fleet which had pursued the Zeven Provinciën along the Sumatran coast since Sunday, when the men seized the ship and fled to sea.

Official dispatches to the Dutch government described the sanguinary ending of the mutiny. The pursuing fleet, including a cruiser, two destroyers and eight seaplanes, closed in on the mutineers in defiance of their threat to use their guns. The Zeven Provinciën is armed with two 11 inch rifles, as well as smaller guns.

The mutineers refused to surrender when ordered to do so by radio by Commander Van Den Hulm of the pursuing fleet. A seaplane was sent over and dropped a small bomb alongside as a warning. The mutineers, who had radioed, "don't trouble us" in reply to the commander's ultimatum, still refused to surrender.

The bomber then flew low over the ship and released a 100 pound bomb that scored a direct hit on the decks where the mutineers were milling around shaking their fists in defiance.

The bomb scattered dead and dying men over the decks. The survivors ran up the white flag. The wounded included Baron De Vos Van Steenwijk, a young naval officer who was one of the few officers aboard when the ship was seized, and who was taken prisoner by the mutineers. Three of the dead were European enlisted men, named Debre, Kroesop and Bakker. The others were native seamen.

Reports that two European marines led the mutiny were not confirmed.

SIX DOGS AND MAIL CARRIED OUT TO SEA

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Six of the 11 dogs that faithfully aided Mischa Charles carry mail over the barren and frigid Alaskan trails to isolated towns in the north were helplessly adrift in the Bering sea today on a 30 foot cake of ice.

Escape for the husky Malamutes was impossible. They were harnessed to their sled on which was loaded 400 pounds of mail. Charles was attempting to deliver the mail to Nome when the ice pack split up and carried him out to sea.

Charles got ashore, but his faithful dogs and sled were carried away. They were reported today to be drifting toward the open sea near Besboro Island. What happened to the other five dogs of the team remained a mystery.

CITIES OF ORANGE COUNTY ENDORSE LEAGUE TAX PLAN

Diversion Of Gas Tax Is Approved

Councilmen and Mayors and State Representatives at Meeting Here

REPRESENTATIVES of eight Orange county cities, at a meeting of the Orange County League of Municipalities, last night endorsed the state league's bill, now before the state legislature, calling for a cent and a half of the gasoline monies to be returned to the counties, with one half cent to be given direct to the cities.

The meeting which was held at the city hall, in the council chambers, was attended by some 50 councilmen and mayors from the eight cities, together with Senator Nelson T. Edwards of Orange, James B. Utt Jr., assemblyman from this district, and Ted Craig, assemblyman representing the northern end of the county. Le Roy Lyon and William Jerome represented the board of supervisors.

During the meeting mayors and councilmen expressed objection to measures calling for construction of more roads, declaring that they were seeking lower taxes for their people and not more taxes.

Discussion of the bills before the legislature pertaining to gasoline tax monies lasted for several hours, the league's bill, which was introduced by Craig receiving the preference. J. L. McBride, city councilman and champion of the league's bill, pointed out that the bill did not take anything away from the counties, but did add some $367,000 to Orange county's cities, for instance, which, he declared, would reduce taxes here from 10 to 15 cents.

He showed figures derived from the new bill which calls for returns of $6,000,000 to the cities, while the counties would receive the same amount they got last year, $15,700,000. The cut is made from the state highway system fund, which last year received $28,000,000. This would be cut to $22,000,000 under the league's bill. McBride pointed out that 39 per cent of the gasoline used is burned on city streets and 39 per cent used on county highways. This leaves only 22 per cent for the state highways, therefore the reason for the League's bill calling for a reduction in that department.

The chief opposition to the league's bill, it was pointed out, was the bill sponsored by John Quinn, of Los Angeles, which differs from the Municipalities League bill, only in the fact that it carries no provision for the one half cent return to the cities giving the entire one and a half cents to the counties. The supervisors then can aid the cities, if these boards see fit.

Quinn, in an address in Anaheim yesterday afternoon, however, stated that he favored the League's bill first and the so-called Southern County bill, second.

CLAIM INNOCENCE IN NEW LINDY CASE

ROANOKE, Va., Feb. 10.—(UP)—Two young men and a woman continued today to protest their innocence of a bungling attempt to extort $50,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh by threats of kidnapping his second son. Federal and state police officials pressed their investigation of the plot.

The three, Norman Harvey, 28, his wife, and Joe Bryant, an illiterate youth of 19, underwent an all-night inquisition by detectives, but clung stubbornly to the story that Bryant had "happened to see a check for $17,000 in a tree stump and 'so thought he'd cash it'."

Federal authorities revealed that the charge of using the mails for attempted extortion might be used in this case, but that the more stringent kidnapping law, passed during the search for the first Lindbergh child, probably could not be invoked since it involved interstate transportation of a kidnapping victim.

100 BELIEVED KILLED AS BIG TANK EXPLODES

STRASBOURG, France, Feb. 10.—(UP)—A huge gas reservoir exploded at Neunkirchen in the Saar district today, taking a heavy toll of life. First reports said almost 100 persons were believed killed.

The tank was 250 feet high and contained 120,000 cubic meters of gas. It was reported many houses were unroofed in Neunkirchen and neighboring villages.

The explosion was heard for 30 miles around, shaking all nearby villages. Windows were shattered miles away.

The population, believing the explosion was a recurrence of Wednesday's heavy earthquake in the district, was stricken with fear.

Efforts to reach the town by telephone were futile, all wires being out. Neunkirchen is a city of 41,000 population in the rich Saar coal basin, 60 miles northeast of here. The basin is in German territory under present control of the League of Nations.

Police at Saarbrücken, 25 miles from Neunkirchen, told the United Press by telephone that urgent word had been sent to all surrounding towns asking dispatch of all available ambulances, fire brigades and police. The Saarbrücken chief of police, although lacking definite information, said he believed the explosion was "a terrible disaster."

GOVERNORS ARE ASKED TO MEET NEW PRESIDENT

Duplication of Taxes by State and Government to Be Discussed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(UP)—One of the first questions to come up in the new Roosevelt administration will be whether it is a sporting thing to hit the staggering taxpayer twice in the same place.

Reports to the United Press from its bureaus indicate this doubling up process, with the federal and state governments both taxing the same items, is increasing. In Indiana, for instance, bills providing for sales, income and tobacco taxes are pending. The Oregon legislature also is considering a sales tax.

President-elect Roosevelt has invited all state governors to meet with him on the first working day after his inauguration. This double taxation problem will be one of the foremost on the agenda.

HOOVERS CELEBRATE 34TH WEDDING DAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Today was President and Mrs. Hoover's 34th wedding anniversary.

They planned to celebrate very quietly and invited only a few personal friends to join them for dinner tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were married Feb. 10, 1899, at Monterey, Calif. He was a young engineer just a few years out of Stanford university, where he had met his bride, the former Lou Henry. Directly after their marriage they went to China where Mr. Hoover began to amass a fortune in engineering and mining work.

BOURBONS IN OPEN SPLIT ON PROPOSAL

Drastic Powers Would Be Conferred on Roosevelt to Slash Expenses

GARNER GOES LIMIT

Incoming President Under Plan Could Move Without Congress Sanction

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(UP)—A rising tide of bitter opposition threatened today to completely overwhelm Speaker Garner's proposal to give President-elect Roosevelt virtually dictatorial powers when he assumes office.

The house ended a tumultuous protest against the plan by sending the treasury-postoffice appropriations bill to conference, a preliminary step to final passage. But the wild rebellion that swept the house floor indicated that congress was not yet willing to abrogate its control over fiscal affairs.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(UP)—President Hoover was represented today by Republican congressional leaders as unalterably opposed to Democratic plans to invest President-elect Roosevelt with so-called "dictatorial" powers.

Mr. Hoover conferred at length with House Republican Floor Leader Snell and Representative Wood, Republican, Indiana, ranking party member on the appropriations committee, on the drastic proposals to give Mr. Roosevelt a free hand to reduce government expenditures.

A wide open split in the Democratic ranks over the "dictatorship" proposal appeared in the house when leaders sought to send the treasury-postoffice bill to conference.

Chairman Cochran of the house expenditure committee and Chairman Rankin of the house veterans committee both denounced the program of their party leaders in bitter terms.

The President Wednesday expressed his support of the plan approved by the senate to invest the coming administration with complete authority to reorganize the federal departments.

Drastic Powers However, House Democrats led by Speaker Garner now propose even more drastic powers. They would give Mr. Roosevelt authority to reduce expenditures on a wide front without requiring congressional sanction.

This latter proposal was the one to which Mr. Hoover was represented as being definitely opposed.

"I stated my opposition to this plan," Representative Wood said after the White House conference, "and so did Snell. I think he (the President) is in agreement."

Center Urges 30 Per Cent County Salary Cut

GARDEN GROVE GROUP SEEKS LAW CHANGES

A resolution urging a 30 per cent reduction in salaries of elective and appointive county officers and condemning employment of married women and more than one member of a family in county work, was passed by unanimous vote at the regular meeting of the Garden Grove Farm center last night.

The resolution stated that the state law should be changed so that the supervisors when making up budgets could set salaries in accordance with economic conditions and urged "county officers to become active workers in their departments."

Copies will be sent to the various farm centers, with the request that they be adopted and turned over to their respective supervisors, state senator, assemblymen, school trustees and other officials.

The resolution follows: "Now, therefore, be it resolved that the Garden Grove Farm center requests the county supervisors to recommend to the California state legislature that they be adopted and turned over to their respective supervisors, state senator, assemblymen, school trustees and other officials."

"And be it further resolved that copies of the resolution be sent to Orange county farm centers for approval, with the request that each center present the resolution

LEAGUE'S GAS TAX BILL GETS SUPPORT HERE

Promises Action

Ted Craig, who introduced the League's bill stated last night that something was going to be done about the gas monies by the legislature. He did not know what he said, but something that would be beneficial to the cities. He declared that he believed his bill was the best and that a number of legislators had found fault with the Quinn bill in that it gives all the money back to the supervisors, making no provision for the cities. He declared, however, that 80 of the 80 assemblymen in the assembly were from Los Angeles, that John Quinn was well liked and therefore he was glad to learn that Quinn had stated that he favored the League's bill, as the bloc of 30 assemblymen from Los Angeles carried great weight in the assembly.

He pointed out that the senate should not oppose the bill, in that many senators lived in cities and therefore were interested in the cities' business, and pointed out that the counties still would receive as much money as they had in the past.

Senator Nelson T. Edwards said he saw "hard sledding" for the bill when it reached the senate and that it may result in nothing being done at all. He stated that he favored the bill, but that a majority of the senators were from the "country" and not the cities and that as Los Angeles has 40 per cent of the registration of cars in the state, these senators would oppose Los Angeles receiving 40 per cent of the money from the gas tax.

Nelson referred to the bill he was sponsoring in the senate which calls for balancing the secondary highway system between the north and the south and said he was chiefly interested in this bill; that he had gone to the senate chiefly for that purpose and that he was keenly interested in having the bill passed.

He declared that Orange county would receive great benefit from the bill, in that the county would get as many miles of road maintenance and new roads as all the 45 northern counties combined.

Edwards' argument was met with opposition from the mayors and councilmen, however, when they declared that they were seeking lower taxes for their people, and not more roads. Leo Sheridan, president of the organization, asked Senator Edwards how the bill would be of direct benefit to the county, and was told that it would relieve the county so that the county could spend its money in other places.

J. L. McBride pointed out that Anaheim would save 10 cents taxes on $100 valuation through the League's gasoline bill and declared that nothing like that could result from the passage of the Edwards bill. He declared that Orange would do likewise and that all the cities in the county would benefit by a lowering of taxes and that that was what the county municipal league was seeking. "We do not need more road at a time like this," he declared.

Edwards pointed out that it was possible that both bills could be passed by the legislature and that he was in favor of both. He admitted that he had not studied the League's bill thoroughly and had never had it explained to him in the manner it was brought out last night. Ted Craig also stated that he thought it possible that both bills could be passed at this session of the legislature.

Craig also told of another bill he had introduced which called for the state taking over all primary roads through cities as well as in the counties, so far as construction, maintenance and even patrolling by state officers was concerned. He pointed out that it would be a big aid to the motorists in that many small towns were paying all their bills through fines against motorists arrested by city officers. He also declared that cities were paying taxes for state officers and not receiving any service from these state officers, another feature which would be eliminated by his bill.

The local league will hold its next meeting, at the call of the president, in Orange, it was announced. At that time, the various gasoline tax bills will be discussed, committees having been appointed to study each of the bills and report at that time.

ATLANTIC FLEET TO REMAIN ON PACIFIC

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, announced today that "in the interests of economy," ships of the Atlantic fleet would remain on the west coast until July 1.

Pratt estimated the cost above normal fleet operating costs to return the scouting force to its home bases in the Atlantic at approximately $400,000.

He called attention to the reduced naval budget for the next fiscal year, and said the department considered it "unwise at this time to cause any additional expenditures other than required for the actual maintenance and operation of the combatant units of the fleet."

scramble of the state and federal governments to get at the few remaining dollars which are left in the pockets of the taxpayers.

326 Duplications A special investigation for the house ways and means committee has disclosed 326 duplications between federal and state taxes.

Mr. Roosevelt as a member of the governors' conference during his two terms as governor of New York has heard much discussion of the consequences of these duplications. It is argued that they are not only irritating but that they result sometimes in overloading government sources of revenue.

Complaint is being made on this score about the gasoline tax. State officials have objected to the recent invasion of this field by the federal government. Some argue that duplication results in serious variations from state to state which have dislocating effect on business and causes injustice.

In Mobile, Ala., for instance, when the automobile owner puts a gallon of gasoline in his tank he pays the following taxes: Federal, 1 cent; state, 6 cents; county 1 1-2 cents; city, 1 cent, total 9 1-2 cents. Figuring ordinary gasoline at 10 cents a gallon, that is almost a 100 per cent tax.

Thirteen states and their own taxes to those of the federal government in cigarettes. Whether cigarettes are a necessity or a luxury is presumably a matter of individual taste. On an ordinary 15 cent package of cigarettes the federal tax is 8 cents.

Excessive Taxation One state tax runs as high as 5 cents. That makes a total tax of 11 cents on a 15 cent article. The smoker who consumes one pack of 15 cent cigarettes daily pays $40.15 a year cigarette taxes in Arkansas and $29.20 a year in Kansas, Ohio and Utah.

The chief hope is that by co-operating there can be a general division of taxes. In plainer language it is thought that the taxpayer might not mind so much if the federal government searched one pocket while the state tax collector went through the other pocket, instead of the two fighting now to get into both pockets at the same time.

When taxpayers in 23 states finish making out their federal income tax returns, they can then bet a large sigh and turn to filling out their state income tax blanks. Boxing tickets carry federal taxes plus state taxes in 21 states. The federal government and a varying number of states double up in taxing general admissions, automobiles, bond and stock issue transfers, candy, deeds, firearms, foreign insurance premiums, mechanical refrigerators, oleomargarine, playing cards, transportation of oil by pipe-line and mail.

The combined federal and state tax on a $1 admission ticket in Mississippi and South Carolina is 20 cents.

Federal and state duplications are found also on cameras and lenses, cheese, fur, flour, jewelry, matches, narcotics, radios and phonographs, sporting goods, toilet preparations and tires.

failed in a 24 hour endeavor to collect $10,000 ransom money.

Pair Collapse

The pair collapsed before a growing mass of evidence, including the "ransom note" typewriter, detectives claimed they had unearthed in their investigation. The two were questioned separately through the long ordeal that lasted through two nights and a day. Howard "broke" first, the victim of an old police ruse, questioners said. The 28 year old music teacher was then confronted by her fiancé's statements. For the first time she lost her stoical calm.

"Yes, we did it," she was quoted as saying. "We needed the money. I'm sorry we did it. We should never have picked on a woman as old and as pleasant as Mrs. Skeele."

She was quoted as confessing she and Howard wanted money so they could be married, and so she could meet certain pressing financial obligations.

She asked that she be allowed to see Mrs. Skeele and "tell her how sorry I am."

No Accomplices

Both denied, according to detectives, they had accomplices although Mrs. Skeele had said there were four men and a woman in the band.

Howard suggested a kidnapping after they had discussed various means of raising money, Miss Hammer said, according to officers. They finally decided on Miss Isabel Smith, daughter of Dr. Merle Smith, Pasadena minister and a member of the U. S. C. board of trustees. Miss Hammer and Miss Smith were slight acquaintances when both attended U. S. C. They sought to lure her into an automobile.

"But Miss Smith proved a difficult person," Miss Hammer was quoted. "She became suspicious and when she began to protest we cleared out as fast as we could."

The music teacher, who herself once studied under Dr. Skeele at U. S. C., was quoted as saying they then decided on the dean's wife, feeling certain the dean could raise $10,000 ransom. When they learned he could not, Mrs. Skeele was set free.

Howard, a paroled convict from San Quentin, fell into a trap when

HOOVER FIGHTS DICTATOR PLAN OF DEMOCRATS

He at no time approved abrogation of congressional powers.

Snell voiced similar opinions. He declared that "it was a fundamental principle to democracy that legislative branch control the purse strings."

He repledged his stern opposition to a plan which he said would establish Mr. Roosevelt as "an absolute dictator, second in power only to Mussolini."

Continue Plans

Meanwhile, Democrats, unperturbed by the storm their revolutionary proposals have raised in congress and at the White House, continued with plans to force a show-down on the issue.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, generally regarded as President-elect Roosevelt's spokesman in congress, conferred at length today with Speaker Garner. Byrnes said the treasury-post office appropriations bill, which carries the reorganization rider, would be sent to a conference committee of the house and senate today.

There, he added, an attempt would be made to write in the Garner program.

Later, Garner said he still "wanted to go the limit" in giving Mr. Roosevelt unprecedented power.

"What is the limit?" he was asked.

"The constitution," he replied.

"Practical experience has shown congress is not going to do this. Unless we let the president have the power to reduce we will not be able to redeem the Democratic platform of a 25 per cent cut in expenditures."

FIVE COUNTY FARM BUREAUS TAKE ACTION

Prepared as a basis for securing greater co-operation in the fight for a citrus pro-rata agreement for stabilization of the industry, Farm Bureaus of Southern California have adopted a definite policy of eliminating low grade fruits and regulations for distributing the citrus crop.

The policy adopted by the Farm Bureaus was prepared by the Inter-county Farm Bureau Stabilization committee of which Dr. D. D. Waynick, of Santa Ana, is chairman, following a recent report submitted by Dr. H. R. Wellman relative to stabilization of the citrus industry.

The policy was presented first to the Orange County Farm Bureau and adopted in January. At a special meeting of the Los Angeles Farm Bureau the policy was approved this week and yesterday it was taken before the Associated Citrus Growers of Redlands and approved. Farm Bureaus of Ventura, San Bernardino and San Diego counties also have approved the program.

Covers Entire Crop
The new policy was based on the original policy of the Orange County Farm Bureau but redrafted by the inter-county group comprising members representing each of the nine southern counties. The redraft was on the basis of including the entire Valencia crop in the state.

Representatives of the inter-county group will meet with marketing organizations in the state in an effort to secure their approval of the policy. The statement of policy as adopted follows:

"The Farm Bureau as a general farm organization, has always recognized that the welfare of the producers of any agricultural commodity is paramount; and, that cooperative marketing is the most profitable method of dispensing of farm crops. The entire organization facilities of the Farm Bureau have been and are now available in the advancement of this policy.

"The Farm Bureau has and continues to recognize that the individual grower controls the right to decide his marketing affiliations, but we believe that he must give careful consideration to the expressed attitude of any organization, with which he may be affiliated, toward the larger problem of stabilization of the entire industry.

List Objectives
"The Farm Bureau in the application of these general policies to the citrus industry is committed to the principle that a stabilization plan which is workable over a period of years must be developed having for its objective, (1) the elimination of 'low grade' fruits as such from all channels of trade; (2) the adequate regulation of the distribution of the total crop; (3) the full recognition of the vital importance of increasing the demand for citrus fruits through every recognized agency and method; and (4) the maintenance of full confidence in the product marketed on the part of the consumer.

"The Farm Bureau pledges itself to lend every assistance (within the limitations of the field covered by the organization itself) to any and all cooperative citrus marketing organizations whose stated policy includes the objectives outlined above which we believe are essential in the stabilization of the market for citrus fruits."

"Low Grade" fruit is defined in the policy as those fruits not meeting the requirements of federal and state standardization acts, or which cannot be marketed at a price above all costs of production and marketing, or fruits whose presence in the market will depress the price of fruits of better grades.

Members of the United Presbyterian church are giving a reception tonight in honor of the Rev. A. E. Kelley, new pastor of the church, and his family. The Rev. Mr. Kelley arrived in Santa Ana approximately 10 days ago to take charge of the church after the pulpit had been vacant for one year. He succeeds the Rev. W. H. McPeak who resigned in January, 1931.

At the reception tonight a short program will be presented by the young people of the church, after which refreshments will be served. The new pastor, who comes to Santa Ana from Whittier, preached his first sermons here last Sunday to large congregations at both morning and evening services.

19 Letter Name Sets Jail Record

A man with the longest name ever booked at the county jail, today faced a grand theft charge in Orange county in connection with the stealing of an automobile.

He is Gonzales Guilemmitzezeana. Guilemmitzezeana was arrested in San Diego county near Alpine yesterday afternoon by a member of the California highway patrol after a car he is alleged to have stolen on February 6, at Costa Mesa, the property of Ross Hostetler, had been found abandoned in Imperial county.

A man who is alleged to have the car after the investigation against Mayor James Walker of New York, is also associated with Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president of the United States at the last election. He has written books and articles in conjunction with Thomas and is well known as a lecturer on industrial and social problems.

The speaker, who comes here from the East on a national tour as a representative of the League of Industrial Democracy, will speak on the subject, "Technocracy and the Industrial Future" at the meeting in the high school. The meeting is held under the auspices of the Santa Ana Technocracy forum. W. M. Burke will preside. There is no charge for the meeting, which is open to the public.

Once a year, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. at the junior college secure a man of national prominence to address a joint meeting. This year Blanshard was selected, and he will address a meeting in the school cafeteria previous to the public meeting. His subject is "Industrial Planning and the Machine Age."

Officers Elected by Packing House
Officers of the Villa Park Orchards association were re-elected at the annual meeting held yesterday. They are: Willard Smith, president; W. A. Knuth vice president; H. T. Brewer, A. N. Saxton and C. A. Watson, directors; H. D. Nichols, secretary-manager; and G. R. Goetsch, assistant secretary.

C. C. Hillis, manager of the Orange County Fruit exchange, was the principal speaker, outlining conditions in the fruit industry.

In addition to discussing the market set-up, Thorpe is thoroughly familiar with the new federal standardization requirements, and as part of his talk will explain to the growers the application of this ruling. The association is in contact with officials in Washington relative to this question.

Threaten Arrests to Stop Shooting
The sheriff's office today issued a warning concerning promiscuous shooting of guns in the Santa Ana river bed near Talbert, following a report that two horses had been hit by stray bullets and that one of the animals had been killed.

Boys with 22 caliber rifles are believed to be responsible. The sheriff reported that he had received complaints all along the river bed from First street to Talbert.

Arrests will be made unless the practice is stopped deputy sheriffs said.

BLANSARD TO SPEAK AT H. S. HERE TONIGHT

For the first time since Technocracy created intense interest in Santa Ana, residents of the city will have an opportunity to hear a noted lecturer who has been in direct personal contact with the Technocrats at Columbia University, when Paul Blanshard, executive secretary of the civic affairs committee of New York City, talks at the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight.

Blanshard, who is one of the men who preferred charges that resulted in the investigation against Mayor James Walker of New York, is also associated with Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president of the United States at the last election. He has written books and articles in conjunction with Thomas and is well known as a lecturer on industrial and social problems.

'WILL WORK TO BEST INTEREST OF THE PEOPLE'

In a dynamic exposition of the facts regarding the gas tax situation, John R. Quinn, Los Angeles county supervisor and former national commander of the American Legion, upheld the rights of cities to obtain a fair share of the state gas tax money and declared himself in favor of any measure that will relieve the common property taxpayer at a meeting in Anaheim yesterday afternoon.

The meeting, held in the Anaheim Elks clubhouse, under the auspices of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce was for the purpose of discussing the gas tax situation. Quinn declared himself to be unreservedly in favor of the California Municipalities plan which would return a half cent to cities out of the three-cent tax paid by motorists on gasoline. If the bill fails, he said, he would favor the Southern Counties plan which was evolved by supervisors in the state and which provides for the return of a cent and a half to counties but with no direct provision made for direct allocation to cities, this being left to the jurisdiction of supervisors.

Accepts Plan
"As a member of the Los Angeles county board of supervisors," he said, "I am willing to accept the League plan, which is comprehensive and which would work to the best interests of the people."

He lauded the work of auto clubs in the past and said he agreed with the auto club plan to add 624 miles of secondary roads to the state system with the exception of one point, the importance of which he emphasized. This point, he said, was the fact that the auto club plan would not result in any saving for the common property taxpayer.

"We should keep the control of roads through cities in the cities," Supervisor Quinn asserted. "Counties should receive a cent and a half instead of the cent they now get from the gas tax. City through roads should be part of the county system."

Greatest Benefit
"It would not do Orange county or Los Angeles county one penny's worth of good to include all the roads recommended by the auto clubs in the state system. I believe the greatest benefit to Orange county and to all cities in the county, and particularly to the common property taxpayer, would be to return the money direct to the cities or to the supervisors."

"Most of the road tax in Orange county, now 22 cents, could be taken off if a fair share of the money is returned to local government bodies. It hurts just as much to pay the road tax as any other kind of tax. To take over a few roads in Orange county by the state for maintenance would mean nothing."

The first speaker on the program was J. L. McBride, Santa Ana city councilman who is a member of the gas tax committee of the California League of Municipalities, who outlined the League plan. He quoted figures to show the direct benefit Anaheim would receive if the League plan was placed in operation.

Figures Quoted
"Anaheim," he said, "pays $90,000 annually in gas tax and motor vehicle registrations, little of which benefits the city. During the last few years Anaheim has received but $10,000 in benefits. Under the League plan the city will receive $17,000 each year."

Subject to the auto club plan because you can't place your finger on how much cities will receive. Under the supervisors plan cities would have to go to the supervisors for money. Our plan will not injure the state program. The state program does not reduce our taxes, and that is what we want."

Ivan Kelso, chief counsel for the Auto Club of Southern California, presented the auto club plan and arguments favoring the proposal to add 624 miles of secondary highways to the state system. The program, he said, would result in direct benefit to cities and counties because they would be relieved of maintenance of the roads taken over by the state. He said it would be poor policy to divide the portion of the gas tax money suggested among 268 cities in the state. He said 10 cities would get more than 50 per cent of the money. He stressed the importance of forming connecting links between cities and counties.

The meeting was attended by city officials from many Orange county cities, by Supervisor W. C. Jerome and other prominent leaders. General Seth Howard, state adjutant general, was present at the meeting.

PREDICTS MORE TAXES UNLESS CUTS ARE MADE

OAKLAND, Feb. 10.—Declaring that there is no relief in sight as yet in the way of lower taxes in the state, and instead, there is a substantial increase in prospect in some form or other, that in the end will come out of the general taxpayer, Senator Arthur H. Breed today made the following statement regarding state conditions:

"These so-called 'fact-finding' committees, of which Senator Bush is chairman, is doing a splendid job in thorough investigation of governmental costs. The legislature will have opportunity to apply the axe and if it does its duty, as I believe it will in this particular, it can exercise an effective control of the state's purse-strings."

"It is true that testimony adduced at the hearings of the Inman committee has shaken confidence in the integrity and capacity of the state's financial management. It is also true that the deficit of near $10,000,000 for the current biennium would have been averted had proper economies been enforced. However, the legislature can provide corrective measures if it will recognize its responsibility in the situation."

Predicts More Tax
"The great obligation before the legislature is to provide for the deficit of $63,500,000 confronting the state. The estimated revenue for the next biennium is $91,000,000. Of this the schools will take $30,000,000. There will remain $61,000,000 for general governmental purposes. How much the Bush committee can save is not ascertainable at this time. If it can reduce the deficit to $45,000,000 or $50,000,000 it will be doing a first-class job."

"To increase the tax of the public utilities $12,000,000, as is proposed, would still leave a deficit of $38,000,000 to $38,000,000. Moreover, this probably wouldn't help in the present emergency. The last time their taxes were increased the utilities kept the case in the courts for seven years before they paid the accumulated bill."

"Failure to cut schools by $12,000,000 for the state as well as $15,000,000 for the counties, means that the taxpayer will have to dig that much deeper into his pockets to make up the deficit, very likely in an ad valorem tax on everybody's property."

No Relief In Sight
"I don't like to contemplate what more taxes will mean to the welfare of our state. The burden already is ruinous. The teachers' lobby is in the saddle at Sacramento. Strangely enough the leaders of the farm bodies are in active political co-operation with it to maintain control. It is to be doubted that the rank and file of the farmers approve of this political combination with the teachers' lobby."

"This lobby has come forward with no constructive plan as to how to meet the deficit. It has engaged actively in misrepresentation, using school children to help spread its propaganda, that any proposal for a 20 per cent reduction in school costs emanated from the corporations. This is a downright falsehood. As for any suggestions as to how the taxpayer is to be helped in this crisis the dominant teachers' lobby is silent."

"The attempts of the hired men of the corporations to raid gasoline tax funds and to shift expenditures from the state to the counties is another example of the powerful, organized minorities that are seeking selfish advantages at the expense of the general taxpayer."

"There is no relief in sight as yet in the way of lower taxes. Instead, a substantial increase is in prospect in some form or other, that in the end will come out of the general taxpayer."

"Is Technocracy a Passing Fad?" is the subject for the discussion to be led by J. F. Burke at the regular open forum meeting to be

EXPENSE CUTS NEED INSTEAD OF NEW TAXES

It is unthinkable that our government, state or local, should levy new taxes until all possibilities of retrenchment in government expenditures have been exhausted, declared C. C. Teague, president of the California State Chamber of Commerce, in a statement issued yesterday.

"In spite of evidence on every hand that the sources of tax revenues are drying up because the drafts upon them have been heavier than they could withstand, talk of new taxes persists," Teague said.

"There is danger that the demands of those who would take the 'easy way' to balance budgets and wipe out deficits will divert attention from the crying necessity for economy."

"It is unthinkable that our government, state or local, should place additional tax burdens upon the people until all possibilities of retrenchment have been exhausted. We must first be convinced that every rational means of saving has been adopted before we can consider new levies which, regardless from whom collected, will in the end fall upon all the people of California."

"Moreover, we have had some proof already that it is one thing to levy a tax and quite another to make that tax productive of substantial additional revenue. It is time the facts were faced courageously. The money is not available to continue government spending at the rate and on the scale permitted in past years.

"Until appropriations are cut to the bone and until we cease our objections because economy hurts, all property and all business will continue to suffer severely."

JOBLESS RELIEF PROBLEM REPORTED GROWING MORE CRITICAL; FUNDS DWINDLE

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Hundreds of American communities apparently do not know how they are going to meet their need for unemployment relief.

Large increases in unemployment during the past year, further exhaustion of the resources of all unemployed persons and in many cases a sharp decline in the amount of available relief funds have combined to create a widespread critical condition.

Unquestionable evidence of these facts is contained in the answers of hundreds of American mayors and other chief municipal officials to a questionnaire again sent out by Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, co-sponsor of the LaFollette-Costigan $500,000,000 unemployment relief bill.

LaFollette sent out a similar questionnaire last year and the answers took up 150 pages or more of tiny type in the Congressional Record. Many mayors then reported inability to meet relief needs, but the distress they report this year is enormously increased.

Last year there were many who boasted proudly that they would "take care of our own," and some were inclined to snuff at the questionnaire. There's little of that in the winter of 1934-35. Most cities and towns say they are in no position now to issue bonds to take care of relief and quite a few have no relief appropriations.

The reply of America's mayors in this great survey of need has not been made public, but indicative bits of it were introduced as evidence at the hearings on the Cutting $15,000,000 transient relief bill, when Chief Grace Abbott of the children's bureau and Gen. Pelham D. Glassford testified to the unfortunate plight of more than 2,000,000 homeless men and boys now "on the road."

Of 69 Pennsylvania cities and towns answering the question whether the community could care for all those who would need relief, 46 answered "No." Nine others said they would need help, 13 said they could, and one said "barely."

Only two Virginia cities out of nine say they can meet the unemployment situation without federal aid.

Most Ohio cities report that unemployment has almost doubled in a year, with relief for entire families usually running from $2.50 to $4 a week.

Of 18 Oklahoma cities reporting, 11 say they can't care for all who need relief. Another says "barely possible" and the 18 say "with outside help."

Some Arkansas communities report a 600 per cent unemployment increase over 1931 and several have had to eliminate relief appropriations because of delinquent taxes.

The town of Dermott, Ark., with about 3000 population, says 90 per cent of its people will need help this winter. That's an extreme case, but there are others—such as a Louisiana city which reports no increase of unemployment because all its people were thrown out of work in 1930 and that it not helped 75 per cent of its homeowners will be homeless in 1934.

Long Beach, Calif., said it could spend $31,600 this year for relief as against $468,000 in 1932. Most New Jersey cities and four of seven in New Mexico

MAY GET BOWL FUND THROUGH STATE LOAN

A plan whereby the city of Santa Ana may borrow $15,000 for its proposed enlargement of the Olive street Municipal Bowl, from the state of California, instead of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, was discussed at a meeting of the city council held last night.

The council agreed that the city should go ahead with its plans to borrow the money somewhere, in that the money is available for unemployment needs had reached a dangerously low figure and that the need here would be great within the next few weeks.

The council expects to use the money in providing jobs for the unemployed, at the same time preparing the bowl so that income from it would be larger in the future.

The new plan is to borrow the money from the funds sent the state from the R. F. C. Los Angeles has borrowed $1,000,000 which it does not expect to pay, it was pointed out, and it is possible that the city will not have to repay its loan, if it is procured.

Council agrees. Paul Witmer, mayor, expects to go ahead with his plan, however, of procuring the money from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, direct, and has received several more letters from officials of the corporation, which seem favorable to the project. The council agreed to make formal application for the money from this body and in the meantime investigate the plan of securing the money from the state.

William C. Jerome, member of the board of supervisors was present at the meeting and stated that he was going to Los Angeles Monday or Tuesday to see if the county could not procure a large loan through the state. The city will be represented, too, and should the loan be forthcoming to the county, Santa Ana probably could count on $15,000 of the money for its bowl project.

J. L. McBride, council member, was of the opinion that it would expedite matters by borrowing from the state, in that the loan would be made at an earlier date and that the city would not have to pay back the money. Should the state of California fail to pay back its R. F. C. money to the government, the government merely would subtract the amount from the Federal road aid fund it gives the state.

Unusual Bargain In Antiseptics At Local Druggists

Local druggists are introducing a new oral antiseptic made by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. It is called Vicks Voratec.

Of course, the only real proof of its quality and economy is actual use. To make this proof possible, a special trial size has been prepared. It contains 2½ ounces—a 25¢ value. Its price, while the limited supply lasts, is only 10¢.

You can use Vicks Antiseptic, in your customary way, for bad breath; as a gargle, mouth-wash, or antiseptic lotion; and for all the other customary antiseptic uses.

Born in a depression year, Vicks Antiseptic is priced accordingly. The regular size, large 10-ounce bottle—a usual 75¢ value—is only 35¢—Adv.

HITCH HIKER SPENDS $8 ON TRIP TO OLIVE

OLIVE, Feb. 10.—Hitch hiking from eastern Colorado to Southern California, through Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, in 10 days of actual travel at a cost of $8 for himself and companion, Glen Niehaus, 22-year-old cousin of Mrs. Robert Paulus, is a visitor here.

Speaking of his experiences, Niehaus said: "We averaged about 100 miles a day, at times doing more and often less. Some days we walked as high as 25 miles. We found the drivers in Colorado the most willing to give us a lift and the least willing here in California. We found little difference between the drivers of trucks and passenger cars."

They did not restrict themselves to motor cars, but also used freight trains. Niehaus said: "One usually hears that the railroad men and yard police are very hardboiled. We did not find it so. Most of the time we received considerable treatment."

"We averaged two meals a day. Food is very cheap. In Denver one can get ham and eggs with hot cakes and coffee, for 10 cents. The most difficult part was spending the night. Many cities and towns have provided bunkhouses for the transients; whenever possible we took advantage of these; but we also were compelled to make our sleeping quarters in box cars, and that without blankets."

Niehaus took the trip West because he found it impossible to find remunerative work at home. He plans to enlist in the navy.

Red, white and blue candles, flags and much greenery provided an appropriate background for the program, which included French music by Orange Union High school students of Miss Phyllis Lucy Keyes. Mrs. Charlotte Wallace gave a talk on Madame Curie, after which Miss Beattie Sawyer explained the Braille system, and gave interesting facts concerning its founder.

At the tea hour, home made cookies were served with hot grape punch.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

— News Behind the News —

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

INFLATION
The Democrats are easing closer every day to the big public works method of inflation. That was the motive in the choice of witnesses called for next Monday in the Harrison economic investigation. It is also behind Mr. Roosevelt's fresh vision for Tennessee River Valley exploitation.

If all goes well it may be incorporated officially into the new deal as a four-year plan for American restoration.

The boys who will do things after March 4 are beginning to see how they might work it out. The only real objection has been that such a large bond issue would ruin government credit with the bankers. No one wants to do that.

The way they may try to get around it is to whip the country into a patriotic reconstruction fervor and sell the bonds as they did Liberty Loans during the war. Whether the country could absorb five billions is a question. There are hundreds of millions in hoarding, much of it in banks. Money in circulation increased $41,000,000 last week. Excess reserves of federal reserve member banks are around $500,000,000.

You could at least get a good start on five billion with a properly handled campaign which had the confidence of big men.

The idea is only in its basic stage. Recent experiences with budding programs has led politicians to be wary. The federal public building program has been less than half the success expected. Red tape is largely responsible. Also there is the unfortunate experience we had last year trying to sell Baby Bonds.

The financial situation is considerably more stable than it was then. The national debt now is about four and a half billion less than in 1919.

Most of the top men of the nation will be witnesses before the Harrison committee. Many are already advocates of a properly handled program of expansion. You will be able to tell whether the country is ripe for such a thing after the others have testified.

The chief thing in favor of it is that it will stop any tampering with the currency. A majority in congress appears to be convinced some inflationary steps are next in order. The least that can be said for the plan is that it would save the country from something worse.

DEBTS
A fundamental change in war debt sentiment has been quietly wrought here since the opening of congress.

Such a nationalistic fervor has been worked up that no cancellationist dares raise his head. Indeed most have gone over to the other side.

Public reaction to recent developments has been such that all politicians who desire to save their own skins are convinced the only worthwhile policy for them is "Make Europe Pay."

FAR EAST
The reason Mr. Roosevelt carefully left his hands free in approving the Stimson Far Eastern policy is privately explained by a Roosevelt spokesman.

This trustworthy authority says the President-elect intends to base his policy on the Nine Power Treaty instead of the Stimson doctrine. That is why he referred to the sanctity of treaties in his recent announcement.

The Nine Power pact pledges an open door in China. Any interference with free American commerce in Manchoukuo would be a violation of that pact by Japan. Dealing then could be done with Japan direct. Other signatories would be bound to follow suit.

That would give Mr. Roosevelt an entirely new basis for action and extend the new deal across the Pacific.

FISHING
Politics is at least partially involved in Mr. Hoover's fishing trip after March 4 with some of his cabinet officers.

When asked if he liked to fish, Treasury Secretary Mills responded: "Fish never did anything to me." He does not know an angworm from a trout fly.

The experts are interpreting the trip as a Hoover-Mills get-together on the future of the Republic.

publican party. Those inside say not intend to tie up permanently with Mr. Hoover, but it is generally conceded he might inherit leadership of the Hoover wing.

In that connection a Republican leader in congress told his friends last week: "I think we should pass this beer bill and make Mr. Hoover veto it so as to eliminate him permanently from the political picture."

His assistant said: "That looks like a good program to me."

BULLITT
The hullabaloo being raised by the Republican Senator Robinson over William C. Bullitt being in Europe is a minor political maneuver. Robinson was put up to it by Hearst newspapermen who think Bullitt is over there representing Mr. Roosevelt on war debts.

It can not be proved, but every insider here thinks Bullitt is traveling in Europe for Mr. Roosevelt on the Russian question—not war debts. He is supposed to be ascertaining how European governments conduct their relations with Russia with a view to American recognition.

That calmer interpretation of the Bullitt case is substantiated somewhat by the fact that he once made a similar secret survey of Russia for Colonel House during the Wilson administration.

NOTES
In connection with prospects for Russian recognition it now develops that the new Russian newspaperman who came over here a few weeks ago was in the Russian foreign office for ten years. He appears to be more of a diplomatic envoy than a newspaperman although that is ardently denied. There was dismay and chagrin in high places when someone privately complained that a federal forestry building in Utah did not even have a splinter of wood in it. The building was being constructed of steel throughout. The federal architects were ordered immediately to make supplemental plans putting some wood in the building. They are hopeful they can conclude their work before everyone discovers the faux pas.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin
Whether he knows it or not, U. S. Attorney Medalla's investigation of election frauds is playing right up Tammany Leader Curry's alley. The three district leaders most endangered are Ahearn men—and the Ahearn faction of Tammany is unfriendly to Curry. If they are forced out Curry will simply replace them with his own supporters and be that much stronger. None of Curry's own lieutenants are on the spot.

FUSION
The Republican campaign to oust City Leader Koenig is having a kickback. The movement originated in the silk stocking 15th district. It has become an issue of high hats versus low brows within the party ranks. This will be no help to fusion hopes this fall.

Meanwhile fusion leaders are alarmed at the manner in which Tammany's economy program through Mayor O'Brien has gone over with the public. Anti-Tammany sentiment has waned noticeably in the past week.

MORTGAGE BONDS
The plan to rescue the mortgage companies—and also to prevent default on any of the three billion dollars worth of guaranteed real estate mortgage bonds now outstanding—is progressing quietly but effectively. There is reason to believe that holders of said bonds can soon stop worrying if they are willing to accept a reduction of interest.

BANKS
The New York Banking department had its hands full last week with a nasty situation which developed upstate. It was feared that the closing of the institution in question would have repercussions far beyond the local area. The superintendent personally took charge of matters but the temporary solution adopted needs plenty of bolstering up. If the R. F. C. continues its publicity—which many people doubt—the report covering February ought to make interesting reading.

SAVINGS BANKS
The larger New York savings banks have won their argument in favor of a savings bank clearing house association rather than a single central savings bank under state control. They were opposed to the central bank idea partly because it would have involved them in politics and partly because they feared their reserves might be used to rescue situations of which they had no knowledge or control. The savings bank business probably will remain in the hands of the bankers.

Figures showing that mutual savings bank deposits declined by the insignificant amount of 59 million dollars in 1932 failed to consider the additional withdrawal of interest credited during the year. It is estimated that inclusion of this factor would have added about four hundred million dollars to the net withdrawal. Even so the showing is remarkably good.

AVIATION
The Senate's refusal to vote an airmail subsidy put a damper on aviation merger plans. Most of the lines would have plenty of trouble getting by without that subsidy on their present setup. One of Cord's pet ideas is to regulate air transportation so that government aid would not be necessary.

Projected high speed services have been deferred until the subsidy situation straightens out. Schedules had been planned of 16 hours from New York to Los Angeles and 10½ hours from New York to Miami.

The hope here is that the next congress will vote an airmail appropriation—of much smaller proportions than the one now in effect. American Airways is slated to be the chief victim. Based on population of the cities covered this line was being paid much more relatively than its competitors.

HOSPITALITY

Don't be surprised if a number of Democratic leaders turn up at the Danmore hotel in the near future. They will be the invited guests of Robert H. Gore of Chicago—who would like to be the next Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The hotel is owned by Henry L. Doherty. He has been a lavish host there at his own expense this winter.

GOLD

Inflation talk and depreciated Canadian dollars have stirred a lot of interest in Canadian gold mining stocks. Three of the erstwhile biggest bears headed a party that left New York last week to look over some Canadian properties.

STOCKHOLDERS

A survey by a food company indicates the value to a corporation of a large number of small stockholders. It showed that stockholders were buying about five times the per capita volume of the company's products as compared with other householders.

TREASON

An employee of a New York bank recently had an annoying altercation with his electric light company. He wrote them a satirical letter which he showed—as a matter of amusement—to a friend of his who happened to be an attorney for the bank. His friend advised him not to send it. "I am sure the bank wouldn't approve of such an irreverent attitude toward it out."

Wintersburg led 13 to 8 at the end of the first half, but were outscored 7 to 4 in the last half of the game. PLANS FOR BAKING CENTER OUTLINED

BREA, Feb. 10.—Possibility of a community baking center for the unemployed of Orange county was discussed at the night meeting of the Brea Unemployed association this week. Joe Davis, president, George Himes, manager of the association, reported that the plant of the Webber Baking company could be had and that with the use of Red Cross flour, one experienced baker and the assistance of many of the unemployed, it would be possible to furnish bread for all the unemployed units of the county.

The 70 acres of garden land loaned the association by the Union Oil company will shortly be entirely planted. Half of the acreage has been plowed and 10 acres are already planted to corn. Attention was called to an error in the date on tickets issued for the benefit entertainment being given at the Brea-Olinda Union High school this evening and tomorrow evening, Thursday and Friday. The tickets give the dates as Friday and Saturday.

REORGANIZATION OF SOCIETY HELD NECESSARY BY DR. MILLS; 400 HEAR FULLERTON ADDRESS

FULLERTON, Feb. 10.—Four hundred members and guests of the law class of Charles L. Ruby heard Dr. Walter Thomas Mills, lecturer, author and world traveler, in an address on "Technocracy" at the Fullerton Union High school last night.

"Every new discovery makes possible a new invention and every new invention brings a new organization," he said. "The discoveries of Benjamin Franklin 150 years ago, finally brought us to a usable knowledge of electricity; that knowledge brought to us a host of new inventions and now, discovery and invention have reorganized so many things and have created such a new situation, they call for readjustment."

He outlined the growth of society from the individual who found that the man with the longest reach could "get the most that didn't belong to him" and then found that adding a club to his reach he became still stronger. Through the age when organization opened, to the feudalism—survival times, when free cities of organized skilled labor, men who had no masters, and who were not slaves, joined together for self protection.

Thence, he directed his audience to consider that it was through those skilled laborers, or the guilds, that actual representative government sprang into being.

He said the inevitable result of competitive marketing is monopoly; that the inevitable price levels of competition is to lower, until the one who has the most credit, the most clever at cutting workmen, only can survive, and that that survival creates monopoly, which raises prices.

"Such is the situation today, machines have taken the work from men, Dr. Mills said. "We are at the cross roads, and discovery and invention have done their work so splendidly that reorganization must come."

"The money system is based on debts; money should be based on what we own rather than what we owe. At present, prosperity depends on what we owe."

In conclusion, he said, a most slight consideration would show that the one thing that might be used in exchange that a few couldn't buy, and that is labor. "It is labor, nothing else, that has accomplished all in the world; it is labor that produces, that builds, that mans the machine," Dr. Mills declared. Technocracy says all this is the unnecessary outcome of staying by a scheme of exchange that was adopted in the days of the hand loom. This is a new world and advancement makes change paramount, and we must have that change.

"Why abandon the fold standard to get a system where the equivalent for one dollar means one dollar's worth of something. To get a system of money which does not and cannot be buried and out of use while people starve; to make human energy, which for all years has carried the burden, and effectively, the basis of exchange."

Those present voted unanimously to have the speaker again next Thursday night, and also voted to ask A. C. Whitfield to send a letter to members of the board of education thanking them for the use of the auditorium.

Following the covered dish dinner shared at 6:30 o'clock, valentine games and guessing contests were enjoyed. Frances Bowman entertained with two readings; Mr. Danielson gave two piano numbers and Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Humeston sang several selections, with Mrs. Humeston accompanying at the piano. John W. Sauer, president, presided during the brief business session of the class. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. John Sauer, Mrs. W. S. Leinberger, Mrs. Dixon Tubbs, Mrs. F. W. Weston and Mrs. Frank McIntire.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief?
Why cutting does not remove the cause?
Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?
That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts almost dead?
Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding piles discovered by Dr. Leonard and known as HEM-ROD sold by all druggists that's guaranteed?
HEM-ROD banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel, heals and restores the affected parts.
HEM-ROD tablets have an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when McCoy's Drug Store invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROD with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their case?—Adv.

To make Children EAT

Don't force children to eat! The girl or boy who has no appetite has stasis—which means the child is sluggish. But on cathartics have caused more constipation than they ever cured! The "California treatment" is best—just pure syrup of figs. Try this for a few days, then see how eagerly your youngster will eat.

Stimulate the colon and that child with a finicky appetite will devour everything set before him. Here's the simple treatment that does more for babies or older children than all the diets, fed foods, or tonics.

Nature has provided the "medicine" you'll need to stir your child's colon muscles into proper action. California syrup of figs. Pure, delicious, harmless. It acts on the lower colon—where the trouble is. It has no ill effects on the intestines.

Begin tonight, with this marvelous "California treatment." Any druggist has California syrup of figs, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the clogged colon of every bit of poison and hard waste. Then just a little twice a week until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. Whenever a cold or other upset clogs the system again, use this natural vegetable laxative instead of drastic drugs.

WARNING: There are dealers who practice substitution. Be sure to protect your child by looking for the name CALIFORNIA on the bottle—Adv.

FIRST OF NEW FORDS SHOWN HERE SATURDAY

The first of the new Ford V-8 cylinder, 112-inch wheel base motor cars will be displayed here Saturday in the showrooms of George Dunton, Ford dealer, at 810 N. Main street. It was announced today. The showrooms will be opened at 8 a. m.

Because of the unusual public interest in the new Ford cars crowds are expected to attend. The showrooms have been decorated for the occasion. Attendants will be on hand to explain the many important features of the new cars.

The New V-8 is the largest and most powerful Ford ever built. It has new and distinctively modern lines, a most attractive front end, longer wheelbase, larger and roomier bodies, faster acceleration, increased power and speed and is exceptionally economical in operation. With its 75-horsepower, V-8 engine, the New Ford is capable of a sustained speed of 80 miles an hour.

The styling of the 14 body types expresses the new mode in motor car building. The modern note is found in the sloping Vee radiator grill, the skirted fenders, newly-designed headlamps, cowl lamps and bumpers, the curve of the hoodside ventilators, the 20-degree slant of the windshield, the curved roof header, the reverse curve of the rear quarter and the backward sweep of the apron masking the gasoline tank.

The new all-steel bodies are materially wider, almost a foot longer and consequently much roomier. The attractive instrument panel is directly in front of the driver, with a large package compartment at the right side of the instrument board. Front seats in closed cars are fully adjustable. Interior fittings are luxurious. Options in upholstery and a wide choice of body colors are available.

Cites Threats To Cut Her Throat In Divorce Suit

Listing beatings administered while she slept and threats to cut her throat with a razor, Mrs. Helen McCandless has filed suit in superior court seeking an interlocutory decree of divorce from Joe B. McCandless, of Anaheim. She is seeking the divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty.

Mrs. McCandless charged that her husband drank liquor to excess and would remain intoxicated for long periods. During those times he would call her vile names and threaten to kill her. January 17, last, when they separated, according to Mrs. McCandless, her husband became intoxicated and, while she was sleeping, attacked her, beating her about the head. He threatened to cut her throat with a razor and break her neck on the same night.

She lists as community property a Waco airplane valued at $1500 and said that she believes that her husband owns 320 acres of land in Kansas. In addition to her decree Mrs. McCandless is seeking custody of the couple's one child, the plane and a share in the Kansas property. She is also asking for money to support the child and that a restraining order preventing her husband from disposing of or encumbering any of the property be issued.

ISSUE WARNING ON LABOR SITUATION

Another warning that there is an abundance of agricultural labor living in Imperial Valley and that there is no work for those who seek employment in the valley, was broadcast today by J. H. Fallon, assistant director of farm labor service, United States department of labor employment service.

The warning was received here today by A. J. Norton, Orange county representative of the labor employment service.

Charity organizations and welfare groups in the Valley are already heavily burdened with charity relief work and those who go there now in search of employment will not only fail to find work but will also fail to secure assistance from the Valley charity groups, it was stated.

Steady Decrease In Policy Loans Held Good Sign

BOSTON, Feb. 10.—A steady decrease since June in demands for policy loans, with November borrowings the lowest of any month in the last two and a half years, is revealed in the eighty-ninth annual report of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company.

"As this is also the experience of many other companies," President George Willard Smith says, "it would seem to indicate an improvement in general conditions."

The report pointed out that since 1899 the annual dividend to each policyholder has been higher than that paid him the year before and that, despite general economic conditions, $11,350,000 has been voted for dividend distribution in 1932, continuing their regular scale without reduction.

Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries, exclusive of dividends, totaled $28,158,768, nearly $6,000,000 more than in 1931, but, notwithstanding terminations of policies, the amount of insurance in force was only 2.14 per cent less than at the beginning of the year.

Court Dismisses Deer Shooting Case

Dismissal of a charge of illegal killing of a doe which was found near a three-point buck that had been brought down by J. W. Parkinson, Santa Ana printer, was obtained this week in superior court of Riverside by Parkinson at his second trial. The second trial grew out of a reversal of the verdict of a Coachella justice which was obtained when Parkinson appeared without counsel.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Bronchial troubles may lead to something serious. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

Beware of Raising A Nation of SMART-ALECKS

"German girls are not soft, like our youngsters. . . . They swim a lot, they walk a lot . . . the most beautiful girls in the world."

By MADELIN BLITZSTEIN

NOW that almost every European celebrity has given the press his impressions of New York's skyscrapers, America's glorified girls, Uncle Sam's cocktails and the machine age generally, it is high time for one of America's "lions" to reciprocate by airing his views on what is right and what is wrong with European life.

What are German cafes like? Are French women really homely, and do they disguise their natural unattractiveness by superb chic and smartness? How is the youth of Europe being educated? Are Americans more sophisticated and less fundamentally intelligent than the people across the sea?

Do American girls have a corner on female intelligence? Do European young men and women talk about sex less and have better manners than young Americans? And is the nation of the 18th amendment raising its children to imbibe more freely than their relatives abroad to whom no wines, beers or stronger liquors are verboten?

Just recently Joseph Hergesheimer, famed author of numerous novels and magazine articles, returned from Europe with the answers to all these tantalizing questions.

For three months he sojourned on the continent: one month in Paris, where he watched the American ex-patriates trying to look and act like native Frenchmen; a second on the Riviera, where he mingled with England's literary men, "a disappointingly pale lot"; and the third in Berlin, where he watched the disillusioned German boys and girls of today dancing, swimming, walking and expounding their philosophy of scepticism.

NOW Hergesheimer is back in his charming, early American home, the Dower House, in West Chester, Pennsylvania, about 25 miles from Philadelphia. There he has already started another long novel, this one to concern a young American girl of today.

Robust, healthy, clad in a brown and tan checkered suit that hails from the Tyrol, this 50-year-old novelist declares that he intends to stay put for some time.

"No, I shall not go to Europe soon again," Hergesheimer explains.

"Anyway, I am an American definitely. I'll never move anywhere else because I like the American scene best of all.

"No country is totally good; Europe is too shaken and poor to be interesting for a long stay; and the elements that go to make life charming for me are all here.

"The thing I enjoy best is being with people of whom I am fond. There are few of them, but I find those few in America.

"I shall never move into the city, either, for I hate all the rush and bustle of that kind of existence. More than the noise, I despise the chatter, the drabness, and the hysterical laughter that go with taking a town house.

"FOR my work, which I do not enjoy doing—no writer enjoys the act of writing, but once he starts, he cannot stop—I must have the peace and quiet of the country where I do not have to be with people unless I feel the urge.

"I hate games, sports, organized recreation of any kind. Country clubs make me shudder. The theater interests me very little, except when I see a George White or a Ziegfeld show where the chorus is not only pleasing to the eye, but sustaining to the imagination.

"On the whole, I find American society life dull and stupid. Brilliant conversation is the most amusing thing in the world and the best index of types of mind and qualities of culture. In America, generally, there is an unfortunate break between intelligence and formal society.

"We have people who are vital, attractive and charming. We have those who are extremely intellectual and brilliant. But they don't coincide."

BECAUSE of his dislike of formal society, Hergesheimer liked Berlin greatly.

"The best thing about Germany's metropolis," he went on, "is that most of the men and

American youngsters have less education and more conceit than those he saw in Europe, declares Joseph Hergesheimer, who thinks German youth the finest today and German girls the loveliest women there today, young as well as old, have completely given up the old social ambitions and values. Not one paper or magazine (except a few special publications) runs a society column.

"There are no country clubs; there are no social climbers. The inhabitants of Berlin are so busy trying to get along and make a living that they have cast aside all ridiculous social pretensions.

"Take the girls. In the country towns, they are still medieval in their habits and frame of mind, but in Berlin, through privation and poverty, they have learned to live simply and not mind it.

"They are indifferent to clothes beyond a feeling of appropriateness and good taste. They are content with simple essentials and do not bother about the trivialities that usually interest girls.

"The young people of Berlin have no interest in things that are prized merely because they are expensive. They never go to places just to be seen.

"THEY have any number of cafes where they dance all night because they enjoy it. They drink little; they eat sparingly; and they use their limbs. They are not soft like our youngsters who cry for sport roadsters.

"They swim a lot; they walk a lot; but they do not go for their diversion to exclusive joints where swank is in the atmosphere."

To this novelist, the youth of Germany today seems to be imbued with a spirit of genuine freedom founded on innate decency. He felt that the relationship of German young men and girls is less consciously sensual and neurotic than it is in America.

"German youth—European youth—does not sit around discussing sex," Hergesheimer continued. "For a time there was a definite wave of scientific interest in Freud and his psychopathological theories. But today that has died down to almost nothing. German girls are not neurotic; they are a healthy lot emotionally.

"Besides, I thought them the most beautiful in the world. They have better figures and more charm than their French sisters. They are no longer the fat hausfraus of German legend, but slim, intelligent young women who look at life coldly and intelligently.

"They fall in love, yes, but they must like a man sincerely before they are willing to have anything to do with him. They have acquired independence and assurance.

"HERE in America the girls are different. They are still going through the period of adjustment which started as a protest against the stupid Puritanical ideals that controlled their morals and their manners.

Joseph Hergesheimer, novelist, who found England's literary men disappointingly pale, France's women disappointingly plain and Germany's young people surprisingly attractive.

"Prudery is a difficult thing to overthrow, and in the process of freeing itself our youth swung completely to the other side. Now the pendulum is swinging back to midway and the American young man of today is drinking less than the youngsters of five years ago. He is beginning to behave more like a sensible human being.

"Personally, I am optimistic about our American youngsters. I like them much better than the boys and girls I went with when I was young. The modern boys and girls are crammed with fewer subterfuges; they are much more natural and candid than were their papas and mamas.

"Maybe they are not so consciously intellectual, but they know more about life."

AS for French young people, Joseph Hergesheimer said he could not say much about them, because he did not meet any. He concedes that there must be young boys and girls in Paris, but they do not seem to go to the cafes, which are overrun with foreigners.

"Do not think that, because I believe young America is improving, I give it a high mark," says Hergesheimer. "European youth is far better educated than ours.

"Over there the schools do not turn out the massed ideas which result from our conventional attitude toward education and which limit the scope of the intelligence.

"Here almost all the young people come out of college exactly alike and equally uninteresting. There they are encouraged to hang on to their own personalities and as a result they come out with better-trained minds and a more individual attitude toward knowledge and life.

"Europeans are trained to think. They are not stuffed with myriads of unrelated facts.

"Because of their superior system of education, the European young people manage to stay young longer. The most horrifying thing to me about our youngsters is their superficial maturity. They acquire a hardness that comes from mingled conceit and ignorance and leads to the dreadful American habit of smartness. We must beware of raising a nation of millions of smart-alecks.

"IN Europe, children are not forced to take part in adult life. Here they are always with their elders—a nuisance to them and no benefit to themselves.

"In Europe, kids are raised by simple country nurses on simple diet, no matter how wealthy they are. Consequently they retain the freshness, the innocence and the intelligent curiosity which are the principle attributes of childhood.

"The youngsters of England never drank as much as Americans. Their eyes and teeth are better in spite of the intensive athletic training which we stress here.

"The Germans used to overeat and drink a lot, but no more. The youth of Germany today has seen suffering, has suffered, has managed to survive and is realizing the virtues of the simple life."

Those who say that the youth of Germany is definitely politically-minded do not quite understand the situation, according to this author. It is just that they are more intelligent all-round than American boys and girls, and therefore understand more about politics.

"German youth is taking a lively interest in the state," Hergesheimer explained. "The Hitler movement is now losing ground. The youth seems to be swinging toward the left.

"But do not misunderstand me. I myself do not think that any scheme of government is going to change the world to a Utopia."

WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

You can't fry fish in a FOREST FIRE!

Dry, tasteless fish results from a careless application of heat. Fish that's moist and tender has had an even, steady heat—a little at a time—on both sides. You couldn't get that with a forest fire!

An uneven application of heat ruins food in the cooking... ruins coffee in the roasting.

Hills Bros. Coffee has perfect, uniform flavor because of Controlled Roasting—Hills Bros.' exclusive process. As the blend flows through the roasters evenly, continuously—a little at a time—unvarying heat roasts each berry exactly alike.

The ordinary method of roasting coffee, in large batches, does not produce uniform flavor. For, in spite of watchful care, it is virtually impossible to roast each batch the same. Naturally there is flavor-variation.

One cup of Hills Bros. Coffee will convince you of the importance of Controlled Roasting. No other coffee has such fragrant aroma and delicious flavor... the same in every pound. Order Hills Bros. today, by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

HOOKS "SMART MONEY" RIDES WITH CARNERA

SLIDES Dismissal Of Colorful Umpire Causes Stir

Al Smith is going to fold his 185 pounds into a pile of Pullman sleepers this spring. I don't mean the editor, Al Smith, but the pitcher, Al Smith, who toiled last year for Winston-Salem, in the Piedmont league, and who is going to have a travelog trout with the New York Giants.

The Giants are going to snore through a lot of country this year, with stops at points in California, Arizona, Texas, Tennessee, Alabama, North Carolina, Virginia and New Jersey. The idea of the New Yorkers' spring training trip seems to be to see the rest of the country first.

By April 8, when the rookies from Winston-Salem (some of them, that is) and other points (some of them, also) finally set foot in New York, perhaps they will be too tired to go sight-seeing in the speakies.

INTO THE BUNKS
At various points in California, the Giants will play six games with the Cubs, a couple with Seattle, one with Hollywood, four with Los Angeles, two with the White Sox and three with the Pirates. Then, on March 24, Bill Terry will put his men on the 6:20 at Los Angeles for an overnight leap to Phoenix, Ariz.

The boys pull into Phoenix at 7:15 a. m., March 25, play the Phoenix club in the afternoon and hop a rattler at 8 p. m. for El Paso, a 12 1-2-hour jaunt.

To people who live in Rhode Island, perhaps it doesn't sound like much of a trip from El Paso to San Antonio. But it is. The Giants leave El Paso at 6 p. m., March 26 and arrive in San Antonio at 11:30 the following morning.

Then they begin to get acquainted with the Tigers.

COVERING TEXAS
After playing at San Antonio, the Giants and Tigers pair off at five points in Texas. The first hop is to Beaumont, from 11:30 p. m. to 10:15 a. m. By the way, those Pullman porters on the Southern Pacific are going to become very sick of seeing dimes.

16-HOUR JAUNT
Tigers and Giants will board the train at Dallas at 5:45 p. m. on April Fool's Day and disembark at 11:30 the next morning at Nashville. A six-hour trip that evening follows, with the reward a night's sleep in Memphis. Another sleeper the next night, from Memphis to Birmingham. Then another of those evening trips, only four hours this time, from Birmingham to Chattanooga.

A night's sleep in Chattanooga and a ball game, then relations are resumed with Sam. From Chattanooga to Asheville, that's 12 hours. One day in town, then another sleeper jump from Asheville to Norfolk. It sounds like a long way from Norfolk to New York, but it means only about 11 1-2 hours in a sleeper.

Leaving Los Angeles, the Giants undertake 15 ball games in 15 days, sleeping their way across approximately 15 states, some of them among the largest states in the union.

Al Smith and his colleagues from Winston-Salem, and other points, such as Centralia, Ill., and Waxahachie, Tex., will have lots to write home about.

DOYLE TO CONTINUE BOXING PROMOTION
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Jack Doyle, who several weeks ago announced he would retire as boxing promoter at the Olympic, has changed his mind.

The fight impresario said today he would renew his lease on the downtown area for another year. His present lease expires March 1. When announcing his "retirement" several weeks ago, Doyle said heavy financial losses forced his decision to quit the game after being associated with it for 20 years.

Jack Kennedy will be on hand to referee the bout between Young Corbett and Jackie Fields here Feb. 22 for the world welterweight championship was received today. Kennedy is assigned to the naval hospital ship Relief. It will accompany the fleet to San Francisco Feb. 17 and remain until Feb. 23.

'BULL' GUTHRIE MAY LAND JOB IN COAST LOOP

By JOHN C. HOFFMAN (I. N. S. Sports Writer)
CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(INS)—There was no great pother about the matter; indeed, there were a few "I'm sorrys" and some talk of retrenchment, but the dismissal of Umpires Dick Nallin and William "Call Me Bull" Guthrie from the American league staff is something for meditation.

Will Harridge, the president, dismissed the matter by tossing some orphans at Nallin and Guthrie, but we have wondered if it wasn't something of a gesture in deference of those who have said that baseball is becoming a game for sissies. In his later days, Nallin has looked askance at the business of public fisticuffs, but Guthrie has ever remained a follower of the McGraw doctrine.

It was Guthrie who gave some six or seven members of the Boston Red Sox a lesson in the cauliflower art three years ago. The Bull was never too harsh on the boys in an official capacity, but he did like to mix it with them once in a while and it was generally found to be good for the gate receipts.

Made Classic Statement
He would call a strike that did not seem to be a strike and when the batter would complain of it, he would say: "Well, maybe it wasn't a strike, but that's what I called it."

Once in New York when he had chased Wally Pipp from the ball game and Miller Huggins had emerged from the dugout in a heat of frenzy and protest, Guthrie said: "Hey, Wally, wait a minute. Take the bat boy with you."

The customers like those things in vaudeville and the boys of the old school may be right when they contend that it could lend something to the showmanship of baseball. There have been better umpires than Guthrie, but few of them had his wit and command of the situation.

Here in Chicago, where he lives, Guthrie took his release with complacency, saying: "Well, if they don't want you, they don't want you. That's all."

Seeks Job on Coast
The Bull is dickering for a place in the Pacific Coast league. By trade, he is a steam fitter, but by nature he is an umpire and as such he is useful to the game. But the major leagues still have George Moriarty. George is a fighter. It is true that he let four or five members of the White Sox beat him up last year, but then few fights were ever won by John McGraw and Ty Cobb and the matter of victory or defeat is unimportant.

Once when Cobb was still with Detroit, Bill Barrett, of the White Sox, challenged him to come out of the dugout.
"And bring a bat with you," growled the challenger.
But Cobb merely replied: "You're no gentleman."

All this, of course, happened when Ty was no longer a young man. Cobb didn't win all his diamond fights, but he did fight. And that seems to be what they liked about him.

DO YOU Remember

One Year Ago Today: Santa Ana was awarded the annual Southern California junior college track and field championships. The meet will be held April 2. The Coast Preparatory league plans to have two divisions next year, admitting Cathedral Hl of Los Angeles as a member. Nine of the ten bouts at the Orange County Athletic club ended in knockouts. Knockout Slater stopping Frank Lockhart in the main event. Coach Bill Foote was preparing Santa Ana Jaycees' basketball team for an important conference game at Riverside.

Five Years Ago Today: Santa Ana Hi opened its 1928 track season with a 58-22 dual meet victory over Fullerton. Rust the discus at 112 feet. Vincent Martinez declined Pat McGurk in a main event, at Delhi. Santa Ana's Dons close their basketball season Saturday against Fullerton.

Ten Years Ago Today: Directors considered a proposal to enlarge to 18 holes the present nine-hole golf course at the Hacienda Country club. The Santa Ana-Manual Arts prep meet. With Ross Nichols, Charley Hickman and Verdon Nash all returning, track hopes are bright at Huntington Beach high school. These men won everything at sight last year, culminating a successful season in the National Interscholastic Athletic Association. Tommy McGraw opened a health farm for boxers at Seal Beach.

CORBETT CONDITION STATED 'VERY LOW'

BAYSIDE, N. Y., Feb. 10.—(UP)—The condition of James J. Corbett, one time heavyweight champion, remained unchanged today. He was reported "very low," weaker than at any time since he became critically ill of a recurring heart ailment.

SCHOOL BALL Practice To Begin Mar. 1

Regulation baseball at Santa Ana high school and junior college receives its first official call March 1, according to Coaches Bill Foote and Clyde Cook of the Saints and Dons, respectively.

Several candidates have been working out daily in preparation for the season which does not open until March 31 for the high school, April 8 for the junior college.

WANA TO MEET CECIL TODD AT DELHI TUESDAY

Cecil Todd, successor to Jimmie Rivers and Romeo Lemon as the field prize of Fullerton, will meet Bill Wana in Tuesday night's main event at Delhi.

Todd has had only a few fights here but won them all, and Matchmaker Kid Mexico thinks so highly of his chances that he openly predicts he'll defeat Wana. Mexico's judgment has been pretty good in the past.

Wana, now the leading citizen of Westminster through his series of eleven successive victories at Delhi, will be working in his first exclusive main event against Todd. Wana appeared in the first half of a double main last Tuesday but this will be his first big shot.

Bill "Swede" French of Pico, a welter who gave Wana a stiff battle last week, remains on the card. He'll box Chris Santos, in the semi. Santos is the Los Angeles fighter who knocked out Tony Lee at Delhi several weeks ago.

A big heavyweight from Brea, Harry Sweet, gets a chance in the special event against Sal Pantoja, Pico 190-pounder. Up around Brea they believe Sweet is a fine prospect, and about ready to go after some prizes. Matchmaker Mexico believes Pantoja is good enough to test Sweet's ability.

The card is notable in that 17 of the principals are Orange countians.
Other bouts:
Frank Venegas, Anaheim, vs. Baby Sal Solis, Delhi, 125 pounds.
Reggie Kerr, Anaheim, vs. Benny Gomez, 165 pounds.
Nat Mills, Irvine, vs. Bill Perry, Anaheim, 138 pounds.
Frank Lockhart, Santa Ana, vs. Henry Baunuelos, Garden Grove, 118 pounds.
"Bulldog" McDonald, Costa Mesa, vs. "Tiger" Alarcon, Westminster, 138 pounds.
Ivan Mustain, Placentia, vs. Joe Rivera, Richfield, 116 pounds.
Norman Kemp, Fullerton, vs. Doyle Richards, Santa Ana, 158 pounds.

MRS. M'FADDEN AND MRS. DOTY WINNERS

Mrs. C. V. Doty and Mrs. J. L. McFadden, scoring 91-83 won a best-ball foursome tournament at the Santa Ana Country club yesterday.

Shooting a 40-7-23, Mrs. McFadden also tied Mrs. E. K. Gerhardt, 43-10-23, and Mrs. Hugh Shields, 42-9-23, for first place in best-nine selective play.

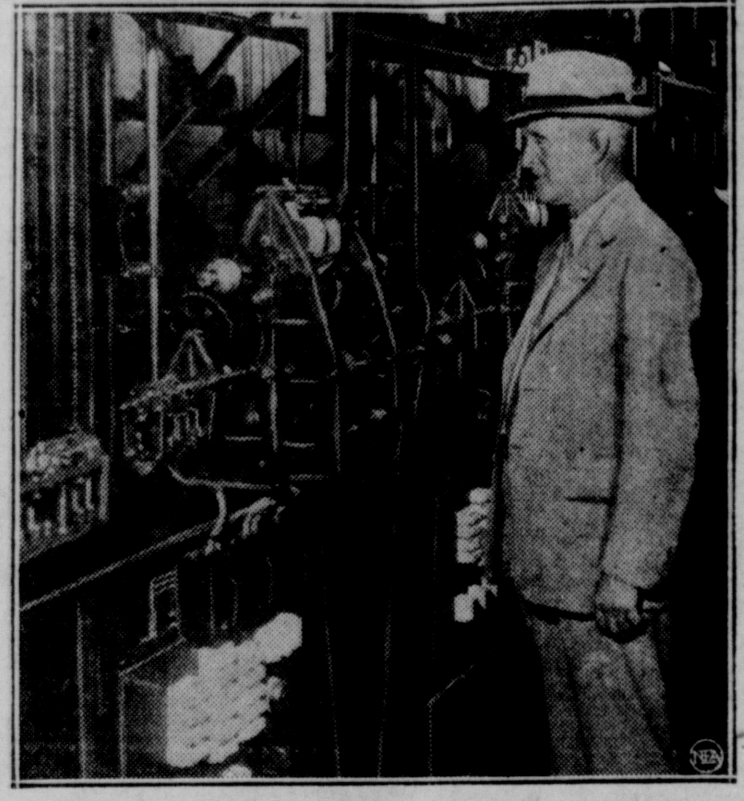

Medal play winners: Class B—Mrs. Don Andrews, 106-23-83; Mrs. W. N. Prince, 117-28-89, Class C—Mrs. E. T. Mateer, 118-40-78; Mrs. R. G. Cartwright, 113-31-82.

MACHINE CALCULATES ODDS

If you get back $24 for the two bucks you might wager on Noon Hour some day at Hialeah park, Miami, you can bet your boots the return was honest. The Florida track has the totalizer betting-machine system. Odds are compiled by a machine that would drive a technocrat crazy. It is said to eliminate all errors and makes honestly automatic. Mutual manager Mortimer Mahoney is shown inspecting one of the machines.

TEMPLETON AGAIN COACHING AT STANFORD; BEN EASTMAN LEADS PROMISING TEAM OF TRACKMEN

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 10.—Stanford supporters view the approach of the 1933 track and field season with two great sources of satisfaction, to wit: (1) The Indians have a good nucleus of capable and experienced performers about whom their team can be built and (2) "Dink" Templeton, brilliant Stanford coach, has sufficiently recovered from his long illness to be able to take personal charge of daily practices.

Templeton will have four men who won points for the American Olympic team in Los Angeles last summer—Bill Miller, winner of the pole vault; Ben Eastman, second place in the 400 meters; Henri Laborde, second in the discus throw; Nelson Gray, fifth in the shot.

Although the Stanford sprinters do not look impressive at the present time, there is a strong possibility that "Dink" will have two or three capable performers before his more important meets come along. Abe Hables, is just beginning to get into condition after his most recent illness and seems destined to have a great year. Hables has done 9.7 in the 100 and 21.4 in the 220.

Others May Develop
Jimmy Wilson, Frank Lombardi, Art Rice and Al Blackman are counted on to round out the dash combination. Wilson ran well for the freshmen in 1931 but never got into shape last year. Lombardi has never come up to his prep performance but may do so this season. Rice, transfer from Menlo junior college, has been doing well in early workouts. Blackmer, a lanky sophomore, did even time in each of the short races as a freshman.

Templeton plans on using him in the 220 and relay and possibly in the 440.

Ben Eastman, who shattered existing world records at 440 yards, 400 meters, 880 yards and 800 meters, is already rounding into condition. He will run the quarter, half and relay, at various times and probably will compete in all three in at least the U. S. C. meet. Blackman, whom Templeton visualizes as a possible successor to Eastman will be with the "Blazers" in the 440 as will Frank Fullenwider, a made-over miler, and Joe Burris, transfer from Pasadena Jaycee.

Count On Dave Packard
Guy Meier, Aladen Herbert and Dave Packard, Coach Templeton believes he has in the making one of the greatest hurdlers combinations in the history of the university. Meier, as a sophomore last year, did 14.8 in the highs and 24 flat in the lows. Herbert is a greatly improved hurdler, particularly in the lows. Packard won both hurdles and the discus in the frosh meet with Cals two years ago and tied for first in the high jump but he pulled a muscle in an early workout last season and was never able to get in shape.

Ben Eastman and his brother, Sam, will carry the burden in the 880. Sam turned in the best race of his career in winning the intramural meet a few weeks ago, negotiating the two laps in 1:59.7.

Jim Ferrie, Ollie Amdahl, Phil Morentin and Art Azevedo, make up the Stanford distance squad. Ferrie will concentrate in the mile, in which he shaded 4:30 last year. Amdahl will definitely run the two-mile. He was consistent around 9:40 last year. Morentin and Azevedo also will run the two-mile although "Dink" may decide to use one or both with Ferrie in the mile.

Strong In Shot, Discus
Gray, John Lyman and Laborde will take care of the weight events. Gray tossed the shot 51 feet 11 1-8 inches last year. Lyman reached 50:2 1-8 in the final tryouts for

ORANGE LEAGUE FIVES IN NEXT TO LAST GAMES

Orange league basketball teams play their sixth and next-to-last round of conference competition tonight.

Although three schools are technically tied for first place, and one other is a mathematical possibility to further complicate the situation, nothing of an untoward nature is expected from the evening's drab schedule: Tustin at Newport Harbor; Brea-Olinda at Garden Grove, and San Juan Capistrano at Anaheim.

Jumping the gun on the other schools, the league-leading Orange quintet turned back Huntington Beach, 25-16, at Huntington Beach last night. This victory virtually clinched for Coach "Hod" Chambers' Panthers at least a tie for the championship for the Orange men now have only little Newport Harbor remaining on their conference program.

The deadlock leaders should not Capistrano and Brea—should not have much trouble winning again although they have the mental handicap of competing on foreign courts.

San Juan Capistrano perhaps has the toughest assignment, and is therefore most likely to suffer a setback, but Stan Gould's Missionaries will be favored over Anaheim, nevertheless. Anaheim's small floor has been a source of trouble to many teams, close-score games nearly always resulting because of overguarding. Anaheim led Orange on the Colony court until the last few minutes of play, and has been almost as bothersome to other teams.

Garden Grove discouraged one heavily favored team in football when it rudely upset Anaheim, so Johnny Ward's Peppers may have a surprise in store for Brea-Olinda, too. But Otis Hornaday's Wildcats will be the choice, although they were pretty feeble last week against Orange.

Tuesday goes to Newport Harbor. The Farmers still have an outside chance to tie for the championship and will be hard to get along with.

ORANGE GETS SCARE BUT BEATS OILERS, 25-16.
Although Huntington Beach threw a third quarter scare into the champions' camp, Orange almost clinched a tie for the Orange League basketball bunting with a 25-16 victory at Huntington Beach last night.

Trailing at half-time 11-6, the Oilers shot two baskets in the third quarter that made the score 11-10. Then Orange put the pressure and ran its lead up to 19-12 even before the third period was completed.

Huntington Beach won the Class B preliminary, 27-17. Joe Morris and Bob Hilton starred for the winners.

Class A lineups:
Orange (25): (16) Hunt, Beach Walker (10) ... (2) Farquhar McCarter (6) ... (3) Lake Gunther (5) ... (4) Morgan McBride (2) ... (5) Jenkins Spennetta (2) ... (6) Pryor Substitutes: Orange, Blanton, Lemke, Huntington Beach—Thornhill, Vandruif, Peters (2).

Hartnett's Kid Brother To Seek Post With Cubs

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(UP)—"Gabby" Hartnett, chatterbox Cub catcher, is determined to keep Chicago backstopping a Hartnett family affair.

"Gabby" invaded the office of President William Veck of the Cubs today and persuaded Veck to take Herman Hartnett, "Gabby's" 22-year-old brother, to the Bruin Catalina island training camp this spring for a trial.

Cochet Out Of Doubles; Criticizes Vines

PARIS, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Henri Cochet won't play Davis Cup doubles this season, the veteran French tennis star said today.

"I believe Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon should form the doubles team," he said. "This would leave myself and one of the young players to play singles."

Cochet also commented on defeats in Australia and New Zealand sustained by Ellsworth Vines of California, United States champion.

"Vines, I believe, plays much too much," he said. "He's a great star but is by no means a Tilden."

Cochet thus schooled comment by many French tennis critics who believe the extended winter tour by Vines and other top-flight American players may have hurt their chances to regain the trophy now held by France.

HARPER DENIES HE'LL QUIT AS IRISH DIRECTOR

BY JOHN C. HOFFMAN (I. N. S. Sports Writer)
CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(INS)—"In again, out again," Finnegan never had anything on Jesse Harper, the Notre Dame athletic director.

Of course, we are not referring to Finnegan's penchant for the hoosgow. Jesse has never "done wrong to our Nell," unless it might have been so in the eyes of the Irish alumni, but the brethren of Notre Dame are still several thousand squawks behind some of the more vindictive old grads over the loss of a couple of football games.

After all, it is something of a crime to lose football games. So today, instead of Harper's dismissal, we learn from no less an authority than the man himself that he does not think this likely. Jesse will remain at Notre Dame so long as they want him, and why shouldn't they want him?

The football season was still in progress when the rumor boys had relegated Coach "Hunk" Anderson to the ranks of the unemployed. But "Hunk" was signed to a new contract. First he was "out" and then he was "in again."

Only last week it was whispered that Harper would not be at Notre Dame when the next season arrives. Harper was "out" with the boys. Now he is "in" again. That the process will cease is no certainty.

"There is no truth to the story that I am eager to get away from Notre Dame," said Jesse. "Of course, if they invite me to leave, then I can go back to my ranch in Kansas. But I'd like to stay on and continue the work I believe we have done well thus far."

"The loss of football was a severe blow to the school and the task of continuing the excellent work he had started was not easy. It couldn't be done in one year or even two, but we are making progress. And I have no reason to suspect that when my contract is up in June that I will not be asked to stay on."

PETE DONOHUE SIGNS TO HURL FOR SHEIKS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 10.—(INS)—Pete Donohue, 33, right-handed pitcher who spent 10 years in the major leagues, principally with the Cincinnati Reds, was under contract today to the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast league.

"If I don't make good the Stars won't have to pay me any salary," Donohue declared.

PECK'S SOME BOWLER

Add Roger Peckinpugh's name to the list of Jimmy Fox's "Lefty" O'Doul and Jimmy Dykes as baseball's bowlers. The manager of the Cleveland Indians recently stepped out and rolled a 274 game in league competition.

UGLY REPORTS PRECEDE BIG NEW YORK BOUT

BY JACK CUDDY (United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Tonight's 15-round bout between Primo Carnara and Ernie Schaeff has crystallized into a somewhat odorous mystery battle with a mess of sinister rumors and lily white statements.

Boxing writers and fans in general believe there's some exaggeration in Madison Square Garden's statement that it is intended as a test to determine a title opponent for Heavyweight Champion Jack Sharkey in June.

A sellout crowd of 21,000 fans is expected.

Schaeff, the blond Bostonian, had been installed a 7 to 5 favorite to win because of his remarkable comeback in beating Kink Levinzky and knocking out Unknown Winston and Stanley Poreda. But latest reports had the "wise money" making Carnara the favorite with final odds of about 7 to 5 indicated.

The passive "push-over" man from Mussolini-land will outweigh Ernie 235 pounds to 210, but everyone knew that when the match was made.

This shift in odds occurred after the Garden yesterday signed Carnara to a last minute contract to oppose Sharkey on or before June 30. No new contract was made with Schaeff.

One of the many unfortunate angles to this bout is that either Schaeff or Carnara will be a second fiddle challenger. The Garden was forced into the Schaeff-Poreda and Schaeff-Carnara eliminations for a challenger when Jack Dempsey tied up the only two logical contenders, Max Schmeling and Max Baer.

Another unfortunate angle is that Sharkey owns half of Schaeff's contract. When the match was made, Johnny Buckley, Schaeff's co-owner, announced that Sharkey would need part of the contract if Ernie won. But when Jack returned from a Bermuda vacation, he announced indignantly he would neither sell his share nor fight Ernie for the title. He still sticks to his statement, despite the Garden's continued reassurances that the winner of tonight's fight will meet the champion.

Even if Sharkey would fight Schaeff, dwellers in cauliflower alley figure it would be very difficult to build up a title bout between a fighter and his boss.

In the 10-round semi-final, Adolph Heuser, German light heavyweight, tackles Harry Ebbs of Freeport, N. J., with the winner to meet Maxie Rosenbloom for his New York state world title in that division.

MULLER, M'CHESNEY WILL REJOIN BRUINS

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(INS)—Coach Bill Spaulding was vastly pleased today to learn that reports that Walter Muller and Bob McChesney, star football ends, had withdrawn from the University of California at Los Angeles, were erroneous.

Muller said he would return to school within two weeks after recovering from an attack of influenza, and that McChesney was in Arizona only temporarily to help his father operate a mining machine.

PLAN PRELIMINARY TO JAYSEE CLASSIC

As a curtain-raiser to the all-important Santa Ana-Riverside junior college basketball game in Andrews gymnasium here tomorrow night, Bill Cole's Tustin high school team will clash with Bob Phipps' Class B team at 7 o'clock. It was announced today.

Coaches Bill Foote and Jesse Mortensen send their respective Santa Ana and Riverside varsities to the post at 8 o'clock. Indications point to a record crowd. The teams were taking their last workouts today.

The balloon that took the Tynmies up in the air to see new sights began to gain real speed and, shortly, Duncy shouted, "Hey! I fear I'll soon be scared to death! Why, I can hardly catch my breath. Perhaps we all were foolish to start traveling like this."

"Oh, merely turn your head around, and then you will be safe and sound," snapped Scouty. "Don't act cowardly! This ride is lots of fun."

"We're going higher. What a thrill! And now we're going higher still. Why, if we keep on shooting up, we soon will reach the sun."

"And then what will become of us?" wailed Duncy, starting quite a fuss. "I know! We'll quickly burn right up, because the sun's so hot. "I wish that I was back on earth. This crazy ride just isn't worth the worry that it's giving me. We're doomed, as like as not." Just then, though, much to their surprise, the balloon began to shrink in size. Of course this stopped its going up. It settled down, instead. "The balloon is trained to act just right. It's put an end to Duncy's fright," said Coppy. "We will shortly land. And, gee, lads, look ahead!"

"A funny man is on the ground and right toward him we are bound. He's motioning to us. I'll bet that he's a friendly scout."

"Why it's a paste pot man, and he is as excited as can be," cried Windy. "We will shortly know what this is all about."

The man ran to them, with a smile, and shouted, "Kindly stay a while, and help us make fine valentines. That really would be grand."

"We'll all sneak, quiet as a mouse, up to the valentine man's house," Then Scouty said, "Oh, thank you, sir. We'll gladly lend a hand." (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

(The Tynmies meet the Valentine man in the next story.)

Advance Plans For Big Dollar Day Event In S. A.

SPECIAL VALUES TO BE GIVEN ONE DAY ONLY

Following an inspiring address by Dr. Frank Warren, business engineer of Los Angeles, election of a new board of directors and a program of entertainment, members of the Santa Ana Merchants association meeting last night in the Green Cat cafe, formulated definite plans for the big Dollar Day event, to be staged by all merchants of the city next Wednesday.

Casting of ballots for directors of the organization resulted in the selection of Gilbert P. Campbell, Jerry Hall, James N. Harding, S. L. Harrell, Eugene Kahen, Claude McDowell, V. L. Motry, Ivie Stein and Walter Swanberger as members of the board of directors for the next six months.

Definite plans for the Dollar Day event, next Wednesday were outlined by the merchants last night. Merchants decided to offer nothing but fresh, new merchandise of outstanding value to the shopping public to insure the success of the event. None of the merchandise on sale as Dollar Day specials will be sold before or after next Wednesday. Attractive window displays will be features of the event. Special busses will bring shoppers into the city from out of town points.

Merchants were urged to spend money advertising the event to insure its success. President James N. Harding publicly thanked The Register for aiding the merchants in staging the event.

Create Business

Advising merchants not to wait until Washington manufactures prosperity for them, but to go out and get the business for themselves and create their own prosperity, Dr. Warren delivered a factual and forceful address that inspired merchants present.

"Some people never had anything but a depression in their lives," the speaker declared. "Conditions are about the same everywhere. Do you know that for every person unemployed there are seven who are employed? And that all those who are unemployed are not broke? Our hope for the one who is unemployed is in the seven who are employed.

"Five of the persons employed can buy as much as they ever could, and three of the five can buy more than they ever did. By making those who are able to purchase more, we can give work to the one who has no job.

"There is one thing that keeps people poor more than anything else. There is one word that explains business failures, bank failures, sickness and misery. That word is fear. We have a fear panic today.

Advertising Needed
"We have more food and clothing in the United States than we can use. There is more money per capita here now than at any other time. Yet people are hungry and broke. What's wrong? I can tell you, it's fear.

"Opposition develops the ability to overcome problems. Merchants to be successful must advertise. They must sell quality merchandise. They must make a profit on what they sell. Price cutting must be forgotten if business is to survive.

"I see in Santa Ana ample opportunity for good business conditions. The need is here and lots of people have money although many of them will try to make you believe they haven't.

"I suggest a community business revival. The only way to get fear out of your mind is to put something else in. If you are afraid you're whipped."

The entertainment program consisted of selection by the Cotton Blossom Five, colored singers from the Piney Woods school in Mississippi, who were warmly received. The featured entertainment was a group of piano selections, one of them an original composition, played by Miss Beatrice Granas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Granas. Miss Granas is considered one of the most accomplished pianists in the Southland and is winner of the scholarship of the Eastman School of Music in 1931. She will go on a concert tour this fall.

PLAYS HOOKEY

When the Maine legislature convened, Warren E. Belanger (below) had to duck classes at Colby college in order to attend sessions. He is the baby member of the legislature, only 23 years old, and plans to become a lawyer.

Announcement of appointment of directors and members of the advisory counsel of the recently organized Orange County Board of Trade were made last night by W. M. Burke at a dinner in Ketter's cafe.

Burke said that the organization would be incorporated as a non-profit organization with the following Santa Ana men as directors: A. I. McLennan, J. C. Metzgar and J. F. Burke.

Appointees to the advisory counsel, representing all communities of the county were named as follows: W. Kee Maxwell, Fullerton; E. E. Smith, Anaheim; George E. Thompson, Laguna Beach; C. F. Newton, Orange; G. B. Coleman, Huntington Beach; W. B. Martin, Santa Ana; H. Y. Evans, it was announced, will serve the organization as secretary. Burke announced that Newport Beach probably would be represented on the advisory board by Sam Myer.

The duties of the advisory counsel, as outlined last night, will be to keep the board in touch with the business situation in the various communities. When a business house becomes involved in financial difficulties the member of the counsel from that community will be called into consultation. If the firm can be kept out of bankruptcy that member will aid in negotiations.

When bankruptcy cannot be avoided that member of the counsel in the community will assist in selection of the receiver, trustee and appraisers. Receiver, trustee and appraisers, will, if possible, appoint from the same community as the bankrupt firm in an effort to keep down costs and to give a more sympathetic understanding and protection for the creditor and debtor. The counsellors also will aid in having accounts of creditors turned over to the Board of Trade.

Membership in the Board of Trade, according to plans outlined last night, will be based upon a nominal membership fee. It was suggested the fee be fixed at $1 monthly for wholesale firms and $1 annually for retailers. Any claims of members against a bankrupt firm will be turned over to the board for handling without cost other than the membership fee. The membership fee also will entitle members to advice and business counsel when requested.

In discussing plans for the Board of Trade last night it was stressed that the organization would in no way overlap the functions of the Chamber of Commerce, Business Men's association or other organizations.

Eight of Forty Head Makes Her Official Visit Here

Complimentary to Mrs. Dorothy Hoskins of Sacramento, who is so capably filling the office of chaperon for the office of Forty of California, was a luncheon of pretty appointments held this week in the Doris Kathryn, with Mrs. Charles J. Leimer of the Orange County salon Eight of Forty as hostess.

Accompanying Mrs. Hoskins were Patti Chappell, Bertha Baker and Mrs. Uneda Sitts, both of Sacramento, who shared the hospitality of the day with her. The soft glow of many tapers and the vivid red and white appointments planned by Mrs. Leimer, made the occasion doubly enjoyable.

Since it was Mrs. Hoskins' official visit to the salon the event was given special recognition by the gift to her of some very handsome personal stationery. There was a charming corsage cluster of gardenias and red sweet peas also, with similar corsages for the other Sacramento guests.

Following luncheon, salon members and guests were entertained in Mrs. Leimer's home where work of the organization was discussed. At sunset, an escort of two cars saw the guests well on the road to San Diego, the next stop on their tour of official visits.

Luncheon guests in addition to the department officers and Mrs. Leimer were Mesdames J. C. Payne, Homer Mellett, William Curran, Louis Benningsdorf, David Jellie, Harold Rasmussen, George Franzen, Glenn Young and F. L. Chapline.

A.A.U.W. Opposes Move To Cut State Grant To Schools

By a practically unanimous vote, members of the Orange county branch of the American Association of University Women last night voted to adopt a resolution urging that no reduction be made in the amount allocated by the state to public schools. The resolution followed a spirited discussion of school legislation measures argued in talks by Frank A. Henderson, city superintendent of schools, and J. F. Burke, publisher. The resolution, which will be presented through the proper legislative channels, reads as follows: "We ask you to oppose any bills withdrawing or limiting state support of schools. We believe that present laws make ample provision for economies in local support, the only economy which will immediately benefit the local taxpayer."

While avoiding the form and principle of a debate, university women were enabled to see all around the problems at the root of the current school crisis before the two speakers concluded their presentations of fact and opinion.

Defends Amendment
A recital of actual school legislation adopted in 1920, and of the Jones bill. Repeal of the Amendment, he declared, would necessitate lobbying by educators every two years. He quoted figures on Governor Rolph's deficit and on school reductions to indicate a willingness to economize on the part of the schools, before such a request was made by the governor, and declared it his opinion that that portion of the deficit entailed by education was not disproportionate to the entire sum.

Mr. Burke's comment on the current situation, offered "as a taxpayer and as one interested in education," centered upon misleading arguments in three situations: acceptance of the erroneous idea that money grants from the state are not drawn originally from the individual taxpayer; a neglect on the part of educators to inform taxpayers as to the actual need of money voted in school bonds; and the assumption that because teacher's salaries are lower in one community than in another, that there is an equal discrepancy in the amount paid to teachers per pupil in the two communities.

On the contrary, he pointed out, the tax burden per pupil is proportionately equal. Mr. Burke argued for a handling of local school problems by the community and declared it his belief that all institutions flourished according to their worth, and that each community would support its schools and, if necessary, assist with the support of schools in poorer districts, if the burden of school taxation were thrown back upon the locality.

The speakers were presented by Mrs. Loyal K. King, program chairman.

Suggests Eliminations
During the discussion following Mr. Henderson pointed out that the state now provided an equalization fund with which it would be impractical to dispense. Various others contributed opinions, Dr. W. Maxwell Burke of the city school board proposing that the teachers themselves submit a list of the school subjects in the order of their relative importance and that eliminations and reductions be made on this basis.

Mrs. Charles C. Brisco, president, conducted a business meeting during which an announcement was made of the annual International Relations, quoted Dr. Malone Graham, state A. A. U. W. chairman of that department, on the advisability of forming a branch group on "International mindedness," and asked that members interested consult her.

The branch elected a nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Robert C. Northcross, Miss Lulu E. Finley, Miss Constance Cruikshank and Mrs. Ray Adkinson. One member will be appointed from the board. Mrs. Mabel Budd reported on a recent lecture by Dr. Susan B. Dorsey and Mrs. Brisco reviewed a branch president's round table held recently in Whittier.

Young Birthday Guests Are Entertained at Dinner Party

Having attained the age of 10 whole years, Miss Helen Tidball, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Tidball, 1421 West First street, found the birthday date especially productive of joy and gaiety Tuesday, when nine little girls arrived to share with her an anniversary party and dinner. Mrs. Tidball had planned a very pleasant afternoon for her young daughter, bidding the group of school friends to assemble directly the afternoon session was over. The Tidball home was colorful with valentine decorations and bright flowers, especially the play room where merry games were introduced and kodak pictures taken. The afternoon's joys reached their climax at the dinner hour when Miss Helen and her guests found places around a prettily appointed table to share the birthday feast. The delectable course produced a candle-light cake to be enjoyed with ice cream.

The young merrymakers included the little Misses Helen Tidball, birthday honoree, Jane Downing, Joanna Overman, Marjorie Wall, Dorothy Wall, Genevieve Shaw, June Tway, Jean Dowds, Teletia Dahl and Ruth Hawley.

Ebell Section Pogram Has Canadian Theme

Mrs. Robert Wade's popular talk on Montreal, coupled with French-Canadian folk songs presented by Holly Lash Visei, vocalist, were the feature of an enjoyable afternoon to economists on the part of the schools, before such a request was made by the governor, and declared it his opinion that that portion of the deficit entailed by education was not disproportionate to the entire sum.

Mr. Burke's comment on the current situation, offered "as a taxpayer and as one interested in education," centered upon misleading arguments in three situations: acceptance of the erroneous idea that money grants from the state are not drawn originally from the individual taxpayer; a neglect on the part of educators to inform taxpayers as to the actual need of money voted in school bonds; and the assumption that because teacher's salaries are lower in one community than in another, that there is an equal discrepancy in the amount paid to teachers per pupil in the two communities.

Relief Corps
Marked by the attendance of a group of members of Orange Relief corps, an interesting meeting was held Wednesday afternoon by Sedgwick W. R. C. in Knights of Pythias hall.

Since the federation meeting held in Orange some time ago, that corps has had the traveling flag of the organization, and brought it to the meeting. Present from Orange were Mesdames Gladys McDonald, Florence Merriman, Euphemia Ralls and Grace Deck.

Mrs. Julia Cozad, president, was in charge. There were 15 officers, 25 members and four visitors present. It was reported that 48 calls had been made, nine bouquets distributed and $129.50 expended for child welfare.

Plans were discussed for the meeting to be held Wednesday, February 22 in observance of the birthdays of Abraham Lincoln, George Washington and William McKinley. Mrs. Viola Fibbs, patriotic instructor, will be in charge of the program. The luncheon preceding the program will be served earlier than usual because of the entertainment.

Members were interested in learning that their junior vice president, Mrs. Edl McConnell, is improving from a recent illness.

Gold Star Mothers
Sewing and other activities of Santa Ana chapter 4, Gold Star Mothers, will be continued at future meetings of the order, according to plans made Monday when members held an all-day session in Legion hall. Quilts which they have been working on during the winter now are completed, and they are ready to start other work at the March meeting. Mothers present were Mesdames Bessie Windham, Edith Reynolds, agement of Al Levy's Hollywood Tavern. He formerly was with the Montmartre.

Robert Jordan, of Bellflower, will open a cut rate drug store in the store room at 185 Coast Boulevard South, formerly occupied by the Black and White studio. The Laguna Beach store will be an expansion of the Bellflower business.

John P. and Lorraine Pardee Volmer will open a coffee shop on Laguna avenue, opposite the post office, in the building where Mr. Volmer's sister, Anne Volmer Leland, has a circulating library.

News Notes From Santa Ana Schools

Julia Lathrop

Science Outing
Last Wednesday evening a group of students from Santa Ana High School, under the leadership of Miss Lathrop, went to the observatory at the University of California at Los Angeles to make observations of the planets Jupiter and Mars, and the moon. The use of a small telescope very interesting and instructive observations were made, which added much to the study the students had been making in their classroom work.

Those students included Jean Allen, Dorothy Bernard, Guy Belcher, Margaret Farmer, Hazel Forester, Anita Hall, Allan Peterson, Byron Quiver, Lloyd Race, Dorothy Skinner, Barbara Speed, Mary Tomlinson and Frank Was.

Every science class is making investigations into certain fields. The low seventh grades are now studying rocks and minerals. The study is being made much more interesting due to the many specimens of rocks and minerals that are being contributed by members of the classes.

The high seventh grade classes, also under the direction of Miss Ruth Gordon, are studying composition, weight and other interesting and valuable facts concerning air.

The low eighth grade class finds astronomy an interesting field and members are studying various constellations and experimenting somewhat with small telescopes.

The high eighth grade is studying weather conditions, making special note of the various kinds of clouds and the common facts which are causes for certain kinds of weather. They are also studying the difference between scientific facts and common superstitions regarding weather.

Boys' Glee Club
Fifty members of the Lathrop Boys' Glee club entertained the students of the Costa Mesa and Newport Grammar schools last Wednesday with a program of varied interests. Under the direction of Miss Edith Cornell, the boys first went to the Costa Mesa school, where they entertained for about an hour, after which they repeated their program for the students at Newport Beach.

Elden Klingenberg announced the program. There were several group numbers besides a variety of special features. Jack Nelson had charge of a radio announcing skit which featured Frank Was, Dudley Westlake, Allen Patterson, Guy Belcher.

A trumpet duet was played by Winfred Gallienne and Onie Sanders; Allen Elston entertained with a reading; a zither orchestra played several numbers, those taking part including Frank Was, Carl Carlson and Bert Morford. Philip Dowds ended the program with a humorous reading entitled "Foolish Questions."

Miss Dorothy Mayhew accompanied club numbers.

Every Girls' Club
The semestral candle service of the Lathrop Every Girls' club took place in the school cafeteria last Friday. This occasion marks the beginning of the new semester, when officers for the ensuing term are installed. Mrs. Iva Webber, vice principal and dean of girls, introduced the new president, Virginia Pritchard, and lighted her candle. In turn, Virginia lighted the candles as she introduced the other new officers, who included Mildred McCullough, vice president; Edith Hapeman, secretary; Pauline Chapman, treasurer; Martha Thompson, reporter, and Maxine Knight, cheer leader.

The school song was led by Dorothy Dixon, after which reports from the officers were given. Miss Nancy Elder, Santa Ana Y. W. C. A. secretary, gave a very interesting talk to the group on the subject, "What Sort of a Grandmother Do You Want to Be?" La Von Hall concluded the program with a piano solo.

Boys' Service Club
Members of the Lathrop Service club held their regular meeting recently and discussed plans for a membership drive. New members under consideration are from the high seventh grade classes, the selections being based on scholarship, citizenship and ability to serve the school.

Boys of the Service club enjoy many more privileges than their luncheon meetings. Plans are being made for trips to Los Angeles and places of interest in Orange county.

The new officers elected were: President, Phil Dowds; vice president, Bob Warren; secretary, Paul Wolven; sergeant-at-arms, Elden Klingenberg.

NEGLECT OF COMMON CONSTIPATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

Prevent This Condition With Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

The first question your doctor asks is whether you are constipated or not. He knows that this condition may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness. It is often the starting point of serious disease.

You can prevent and relieve common constipation so easily. Just eat a delicious cereal once a day. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that found in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this "cereal way" safer and far more pleasant than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DIET EXPERT GIVES TIPS ON BUILDING BLOOD CELLS; SAYS FRUITS, MUSCLE MEATS AID

Editor's Note—This article is prepared from a paper given before the recent meeting of the American Dietetic Association, bringing the latest scientific information about foods.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The most valuable food to promote the formation of hemoglobin, the important substance in blood which gives it its red color, is liver. The next most important are certain fruits, especially peaches and apricots, and muscle meats.

These results, based upon a long value of these foods, and the accuracy of experiments with anemic animals, were announced at the recent annual meeting of the American Dietetic Association by Dr. F. S. Robscheit-Robbins of the University of Rochester. Dr. Robbins made these studies particularly to learn which foods are most helpful in so-called "secondary anemia." This is not the kind of anemia, of course, which is known as pernicious anemia, a disease, but is rather the anemia or lack of blood which follows hemorrhage or surgical operations.

Peaches Build Blood
Some of Dr. Robscheit-Robbins' results are extremely interesting, particularly the fact that some fruits are of importance in promoting the formation of blood, while others are not. For example, a considerable quantity of raspberries added to a basic diet of bread gave completely negative results, whereas the feeding of apricots or peaches stimulated the production of hemoglobin to a marked extent, comparing favorably with the production of hemoglobin obtained with the use of muscle meats.

Peaches and apricots were found to be equally effective, whether in the form of fresh, canned or dried fruit. Prunes were also found to be valuable sources of blood material, though slightly less effective than apricots or peaches. Apples, both in the fresh and dried state, were found to be less valuable than peaches or apricots but were, nevertheless, effective in forming blood, ranking about equally with raisins and grapes.

Another interesting matter was that the ash, or mineral substance, of apricots and peaches was about as effective as fresh fruits in influencing the development of red cells or hemoglobin.

It has long been known that a most important ingredient of hemoglobin is iron, and that the utilization of iron in the body depends, in large measure, to the presence of minute traces of copper. Dr. Robbins experimented with various mineral mixtures containing these metals and found that while iron undoubtedly is of value in blood formation, copper when added to the diet did not seem to produce any great increase in the formation of hemoglobin.

By all odds, the most potent substance for the sustained production of hemoglobin and red cells was found to be liver. This good produced an extremely favorable reaction in all experiments, no matter how long the anemia had existed, or no matter how unfavorable the preceding diet had been. The same response was obtained from laboratory animals, whether they had been anemic for six years previously or for only one year.

Chicken Livers Good
Liver from calves, sows, pigs, sheep and lambs were all found to be of about the same potency. Little difference was found, whether the liver was fed raw or cooked or in any other simple fashion. Moreover, chicken livers were found to be equally as effective as livers of mammals. Fish livers, however, were totally inert as blood builders.

Only slightly less favorable than liver were chicken gizzards, and calf, beef and pig kidneys. Experiments on the feeding of beef, veal or pig muscle showed considerable variations in the

SOME GOOD RECIPES FOR KITCHEN FILES

Calavo Valentine Salad

Halve calavo - avocado pear lengthwise, removing seed. Cut flat slice quarter-inch thick, placing it on lettuce leaf. Cut a "v" from the bottom end of each slice and form a heart-shape with each slice. This automatically makes the original seed cavity heart-shaped also. Border heart-shaped cavity with strip of red pimiento. Fill cavity with fruit salad. To make St. Valentine's arrow, run strip of pimiento across calavo to the cherry placed on top of fruit salad. Serve with sharp lemon dressing.

Calavo Valentine Tarts

Whip quarter pint whipping cream, add six teaspoonsful powdered sugar and sprinkling salt. Sieve one medium calavo-avocado pear, then add to whipped cream. Add three teaspoonsful wine flavoring in which one drop liquid green vegetable coloring has been added. Fill heart-shaped pastry shells. Top with tiny heart-shaped pieces of red wine jelly. Chill one to two hours before serving.

Heart's Salad

Use eighth-inch thick slices of calavo-avocado pear and of jelly-cut cranberry. With a cookie cutter, shape hearts from cranberry and calavo slices. Then using much smaller vegetable cutter of heart shape, cut out centers in each slice, and interchange hearts. The small cut out calavo and cranberry hearts may also be served as colorful appetizers on whole wheat wafers.

Why Make Baking Mistakes?

Baking success is "knowing your flour"—just ask any user of JENNY WREN, the ready-mixed, all-purpose flour. With JENNY WREN, baking failures simply never happen—because this flour is recipe mixed at the mills, for all baking uses. It bakes more deliciously, economically, to your own discriminating requirements. A hundred and more uses, 4 pounds to the package, one all-purpose flour, ready-mixed for instant use—that's JENNY WREN. The most economical to buy, because it bakes more to the pound and never a speck wasted on failures. Try this recipe.

Jenny Wren Chocolate Cookies
1/2 cup butter
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
8 cups JENNY WREN Flour
1 cup grated chocolate
Mix flour, sugar and chocolate thoroughly. In another bowl mix butter which has been softened a little, beat in eggs and vanilla. To this add the dry mixture a little at a time and knead until thoroughly mixed. Make a small ball in palm of hand about size of a walnut, and bake in a moderately hot oven for about 15 minutes (400 degrees).

For nearly eleven years this market has gone steadily ahead until now we are selling more meat than at any time in our history. We feel this is surely gratifying, since all family budgets are not what they used to be.
This market enjoys the business of the more substantial personnel — those who appreciate and know what good things to eat really are.

Grand Central Market Briefs

One of the most extensive developments of turkey raising in southern California is being made by the owners of the Broadway Meat Market,
George Klam and Harold
Nelson, on their ranch in Apple Valley near Victorville. All preparations have been made to raise 5000 giant bronze turkeys, 2000 of which are already at the ranch. Every five weeks a thousand baby turkeys are added to the flock and farm authorities throughout the southland are viewing with interest this ambitious project. The ranch also specializes in production of fancy baby beef Hereford steers.

The management of Van's Grocery wishes to extend their sincere appreciation to their many friends and patrons who attended the opening of their new store in the Arcade section of the Market last Saturday. The Van stores' policy of offering nationally advertised merchandise at cut rate prices is rapidly becoming more popular throughout the southland.

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Luncheon
Apple-cabbage-walnut salad
Mineral oil mayonnaise
Hot bacon sandwich
Pot of clear tea, or glass of buttermilk, uncreamed
The crisp raw salad is used mainly for its vitamins and cleansing acids and lime elements. Apart from these virtues it fills a demanding stomach, acts as a broom to the walls of the intestinal canal, and means little or nothing in fat-making calories.
Grate the cabbage (1-2 cupful) dice a small apple and chop 4 walnut halves. Toss together and dress with mineral oil mayonnaise fluffed up with stiffly beaten egg white.
Serve on a bed of shredded lettuce and eat every bite on the plate.
For the bacon sandwich put 3 slices of bacon in the oven and let them slowly crisp. Pour off the fat and put the slices between 2 slices of thin hot bran toast. No butter allowed. Eat with the salad.

Calory total, 375.
Note: If buttermilk is used add
85 calories to this total.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Lima Bean Loaf

1 1-2 cups toasted bread crumbs
1 1-2 cups lima bean pulp
2 eggs, well beaten
4 tablespoons melted butter
1 1-2 cups top milk
1 teaspoon sugar
Salt and pepper to taste
1-4 cup chopped walnut meats

Save breakfast toast for such recipes as this: Crisp in oven and run through food chopper. Measure the required amount and put in mixing bowl. Mash cooked lima beans very smooth (heat first) and 1-g-shrdlueatoincmfshrdlshrdludu add to the crumbs with melted butter, salt, pepper, sugar and chopped nut meats. Add beaten eggs to milk and use to mix the loaf.

Butter a large shallow casserole, put in the bean mixture and bake in a slow oven 40 minutes.

This loaf serves eight very generously, takes the place of a meat dish, and has a calory total of approximately 2400.

Lima beans when combined with milk are reputed to be a complete protein, comparable in value to beef steak, and especially good for anaemic children.

With this Lima Bean loaf I think
I'd serve fried Apple Rings, mashed carrot dressed with butter,
Sweet and Sour cabbage, no potatoes, but a crisp green salad dressed sparingly with French dressing.

With the exception of the bean loaf there are no high-priced calories on the list, so a fairly rich dessert might be served. How about a fruit whip or a home-made ice cream?

Saturday: when the food budget gets thin in spots, serve liver. Try Creamed Liver on Toast, the recipe for tomorrow.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

By VERA RAMSEY

Those who have read the three previous volumes of "Our Times" by Mark Sullivan will be waiting for volume four. "The War Begins, 1909-1914" is not only an account of a period near enough our own to fascinate us, but also of one most interesting in itself.

War was not the only thing that had its birth in those exciting years. There is the important item of mass production as so well exemplified by Henry Ford's automobile. Not only did this brand of car become a staple of the day, but perhaps even more so was the Ford joke. Ford stories were told by everyone from vaudeville funny men to clergymen. In fact one quip suggested that Ford jokes were manufactured in the Ford factory along with the cars.

The movement for prohibition was beginning to make itself felt. Andrew Carnegie gave his great gift which was looked upon by some as great generosity, by others as a bid for public esteem. Interest in Freud and different Freudian theories hit the United States in about 1910. This grew to a great extent, its influence being far reaching, even to the present day. In New York, popular music was taking a new trend and in "Tin Pan Alley," the improvising of new tunes was becoming a highly commercialized trade. The new music and new dances developed together. The older and slower dances gave way about 1910 to a vogue of dances with a more strident tempo and a jerkier motion. It was during these years that the friendship of Roosevelt and Taft arose and died. W. J. Bryan was making his presence and his theories felt in the United States.

These are only a few high lights from the many events of this period. The reader will find many a chuckle as well as information in his perusal of the text and the pictures.

Perhaps one method of studying human nature throughout the centuries would be a survey of the type of amusements enjoyed by the people of each period. In "Popular Entertainments Throughout the Ages," Samuel McKechnie gives us an interesting history of amusements.

The book confines itself mainly to England. It was here that many of our own customs originated, so the volume will be of interest to Americans as well as English readers. Probably the earliest form of entertainment in England was furnished by minstrels and strolling players. In the market places or wherever they could gather a crowd. These strollers wandered all over the country and were present at village fairs and great summer gatherings such as the Southwark Fair, Greenwich Fair, Southwark Fair, May Fair, and Bartholomew Fair. These fairs were popular all over England.

The comedy of masks had its birth in Italy but became popular in England. It gave to England such pantomime characters as Harlequin, Pantaloon, Columbine and Indirectly. Clown. The development of puppets and pantomime is described in the combined spirit of fun and artistry which characterized them.

Musical halls, the cinema, and the circus are all discussed. The story of the cinema is discontinued at an early age because of the emphasis on England. The circus has, however, been brought right down to 1931. This is the form of entertainment that has the most in common with the wandering tinklers, clowns, and bear-leaders of an earlier day.

"Maria Theresa of Austria" by Dr. J. Alexander Mabian brings to us a picture of one of the most remarkable women of all times. Maria Theresa was the only ruling queen of the House of Hapsburg. In the face of almost overwhelming difficulties both at home and abroad she not only held her position but immensely increased the prestige of Austria. This she did in the face of a no less daunting opponent than that of Frederick the Great of Prussia.

Also her record of motherhood is probably unequalled by that of any other great queen of history. Married at nineteen, within the next twenty years she had given birth to sixteen children. Seven were born during her long struggle to maintain her crown against Frederick the Great; and one was born during the Seven Year's War. Yet the wife and mother never merged the active and driving head of her own ministers and generals.

This is only a meagre part of the extraordinary life story of Maria Theresa, which seizes and holds the imagination as one dips into it. The present author has not made the mistake of assuming too much knowledge of eighteenth century European history on the part of the reader. He has taken care to establish his background and introduce his characters as a novelist would. He has written his story in its native setting, Vienna, having had access to the Austrian archives and making use of intimate letters. The work is a genuine contribution to historic biography. It brings to us this queen in all her power and dignity.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Mona Townsend, married six months and widowed, inherits her husband's millions providing she does not rewed. Her marriage, arranged by Townsend's lawyer, who was Mona's employer, was a strange affair, leaving her free at the end of a year to become her husband's wife in actuality or secure a divorce. Mona, in love with her husband's nephew, Barry Townsend, agreed to the marriage when she thought Barry was lost to her.

Barry is in South America where he and Steve Saccarelli are partners in a diamond mine. Mona's brother, Bud, works for them. Lottis Carr, fashion model, is Mona's closest friend.

Mona feels Barry is entitled to a share of his uncle's fortune but there is no legal way for her to arrange this. She employs Lottis as her secretary and companion and they sail for South America. Mona hopes for a reconciliation with Barry and also to find a way to give him a share of the Townsend fortune.

Learning that Barry and Steve are on a vacation at Holiday Island, they decide to leave the boat at Port of Spain. A beautiful young French girl who is trying to escape from her chaperon boards the boat. She sees Barry's picture in Mona's stateroom and cries out, "My Barry!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVII

"Do you know Barry Townsend?" asked Mona slowly. She came into the cabin and, closing the door, leaned against it. This other girl, this slip of a youngster really, was clasping Barry's picture to her heart as though she loved him.

She seemed scarcely old enough to love anyone. Yet Mona realized she was not too young. Latin races maturing early, had produced this girl who was crooning over the photograph.

"Pardon, Madame?" said Celeste, startled. "Do I know Barry?" A man could have loved this girl. Mona thought, for just that delightful, lingering drawl.

But there were other reasons as well. Celeste was beautiful. She had wound her hair once more with the black and white silk handkerchief. Lottis's simple white silk frock suited her to perfection. "You know my Barry, Madame?" the girl asked again, wondering. "But naturally! Or you would not have had his picture? Or maybe he sees a movie star?"

"Movie star?" repeated Mona. Relief came over her with a joyous glow. "Then you do know him? You do not know who he is?"

"I know him," responded the girl assuredly. She set the leather case back again on top of the wardrobe trunk whence she had removed it.

"Where did you see him?" asked Lottis.

"Here," added Mona. "Said down and don't be afraid. We would like to know where it was you saw Barry Townsend."

The girl hesitated. "I do him no wrong," she asked carefully. "You are not—"

Celeste's eyes traveled to the ring on Mona's finger.

"His wife?" Mona laughed a little harshly. "No. I am—I am his aunt! Don't be afraid. I have come here in search of Barry and if you can help me find him then you are befriending him. It may be in my power to bring him much wealth."

Celeste sat down slowly. "Yes," she said at last, "I will tell you. Why not? Oh, it is nothing! I fell in love with him. Maybe you think I am young?" She drew herself up proudly. "I am sixteen! I met Barry when he went to Barbuda. Hunting. I was there with my father. Barry was there in his what-you-call? Motor sledge.

Ah, yes! He and another gentleman. They came to Barbuda—

"Barbuda?"

"Another island." There was a jilting note in the girl's voice. "Barbuda, where gentlemen go to hunt. Oh, a darling island. Plantation is that correct—with game. A beautiful place. The ancients who owned it used to breed fine slaves there. Only the loveliest of them remained. The others were sold. For generations the slaves from Barbuda excelled in beauty. They brought high prices."

"Not now!" gasped Mona.

"Of course not now!" responded the girl indifferently. She smiled. "It was there I met Barry."

"And he—made love to you?" asked Lottis.

The girl twisted and looked at her a moment. She smiled winningly. "No."

"Ah," Mona breathed.

"Barry did not make love to me. But I loved him. I tried to follow him." She shrugged. "So Maria, my maid, was sent to take me to Barbados. Here I learn English."

"You speak it very well."

"I am learning the English way," the girl said reprovingly.

There was a hue and cry outside and then a shout. Lottis stepped to the door and stood against it. "It's Maria and a couple of officers. They want Celeste."

"Her parents are on board, aren't they?" asked Mona. "Certainly they are! They came back from the club in the tender when I came. They did not expect the daughter. I recall that they planned to visit her at her school after lunch. Lottis, let her go. They are looking for her."

"But these clothes!" Celeste began wistfully.

"Look," said Lottis suddenly, taking the girl by the shoulders. "Can you tell us where Barry is now?"

"Holiday Island, I think. That is where—"

"Where 'is Holiday Island? asked Lottis sharply.

"I don't know. It was an island, that's all. Barry bought it—"

"Celeste!" roared her father outside the door. "Are you there? Come out. No more nonsense!"

"You may have the dress," Lottis said hurriedly. Unbuckling her wrist watch, she added, "And this." She motioned Mona to be still, took Barry's picture from the frame, slid it between the pages of a magazine and put it in the girl's arms. The hurry and flurry outside had subsided. The searchers were exploring the crew's quarters.

"Come with me," Lottis said. "I'll take you down this way and get a boat for you. Maybe the quartermaster won't recognize you. Come!"

The quartermaster preferred not to recognize the crestfallen young lady who hung on Lottis's arm and grasped a magazine convulsively. Lottis secured a boat, gave the oarsmen two shillings and bade him shove off.

She watched while the little bark bobbed its way to the quay. "Now," she said to the quartermaster, "take this message to Celeste's father and that nurse. Tell them Mademoiselle has gone ashore."

Mona met her with a white face. "Look here," Lottis began without waiting for her to speak, "if you are going to faint at every girl who is in love with Barry down here you'd better get a grip on yourself. That kid has a high school crush on Barry. She admits he didn't care for her and he probably didn't even know she was around. You know what men are when they go hunting?"

"I know what pretty French girls are when they go hunting!" returned Mona. "And you gave her his picture!"

"You can get a dozen others by cabling and having them sent air mail. Sallie would attend to it, or Mrs. Faxon. I gave her the portrait to get rid of her because she gave us quite a tip."

Lottis sank into a chair. "In the first place she said Barry had bought Holiday Island. That narrows things down somewhat. There's a man at Port of Spain, the captain told me, who can tell us where Holiday Island is. We reach Port of Spain tomorrow. We can charter a plane there and fly to Holiday. It's easy!"

"We may have passed Holiday Island," Mona suggested.

"Yes; but if we charter a plane we can fly back or down or across—wherever we must go—in no time!" Mona nodded miserably. "I'm glad I brought you along, Lottis," she said meekly.

"Listen, Mona. I'm as anxious to see that dark-haired friend of Barry's as you are to find Barry."

"Are you in love with Steve?" "Maybe. That remains to be seen! Come on, let's have tea."

The evening dragged. The girls went to the dance at the Aquatic Club to make the time pass more quickly. At midnight the party returned to the Miranda and at one o'clock she had cleared for Port of Spain.

But at Port of Spain Lottis and Mona, in the kindly guidance of young Dr. Allen, failed to find the man who they hoped would direct them to Holiday Island. He had gone fishing at Gasparee and would not be back for several days.

"Then we'll stay several days," Mona decided.

They drove back to the quay for their baggage, took it through the customs and found a taxi. "Let's drive through the park," suggested the doctor, smiling. "It is going to cost us the large sum of 12 cents!"

They drove up Frederick street and, skirting the Savanna, drew up at the Queen's Park hotel.

"Tea," said Lottis, indicating the cool open lobby which looked out on spreading saman trees. "I'm famished. Why, great heavens! Mona, do you see what I see?"

There, seated at a table, dressed in aviator's toga, and pensively sipping a cooling drink, sat Bud Moran.

A WORD TO THOSE REPRESENTING ORANGE COUNTY

In the "confusion of tongues," we would like to emphasize to Orange county's representatives in the legislature that a few things stand out most clearly, which point the road to duty.

The state is confronted with a $9,000,000 deficit for the past, and, according to the present program, with a $60,000,000 deficit for the next biennium, which would aggregate $69,000,000, and with a certainty of a decreased revenue in certain directions over what there has been in the past.

The members of the legislature are elected to represent all of the people. They are not there to do the will of simply a part of the people. They received a mandate on election day, not from organized groups, not from organized minorities, but from the masses of the actual living taxpayers.

THIS WAS THE CLEAR MANDATE: TO TAKE SUCH ACTION IN THE LEGISLATURE IN REGARD TO ALL EXPENSES TO THE END THAT THE BURDENED, DISTRESSED AND ACTUALLY PANIC-STRICKEN HOME-OWNERS OF THIS STATE MIGHT GET SOME RELIEF, AND SAVE THEIR PROPERTY, IF IT IS POSSIBLE TO SAVE IT.

We would urge this rule of action as representing justice, and the spirit of the majority: "KEEP NO EXPENSE, THE KEEPING OF WHICH WOULD ADD TO THE DANGER OF ADDING A PROPERTY TAX TO OUR PRESENT STATE TAX PROGRAM." If the legislature simply proceeds to add to the taxes of the people of the state, and thereby jeopardizes the very holdings of possibly 50 per cent of the people of the state this coming year and more next, the voters, we are confident, will feel the legislators have been recreant to their trust.

Those who insist that you, their representatives, shall not vote for reductions in that line in which they are particularly interested, are not speaking on behalf of your faithfulness to your trust, nor in the interest of the general welfare. Through the operation of the law at times when the citizens have not been awake, special interests have evolved the process of extracting money from the taxpayers' pockets through state revenue and state direction, and removed discretionary power from the local officials, upon whom is placed the responsibility of the conduct of public affairs. It was done when our citizenry was complacent, unwearyed by the specter of foreclosure. Today it is far different.

Today a readjustment is demanded. If through lobbies, a readjustment through the state is rendered impossible, the aroused and desperate taxpayers must see that the remedies are applied for their protection in some other way, for it must be done.

The program of telling the taxpayers that when the county or state pays the bills the taxpayer is relieved, in order to induce him to support the proposition, must cease, for the taxpayer is finding that they are fooling him, and that he pays the bills in the last analysis, whether it comes from the county or the state.

The taxpayers who are still ignorant on this line will have a rude awakening if, added to the other state taxes, a direct property tax is added this year, in order to meet the budget, for this will be added to the other property tax.

THE HUMAN IN US ALL

We think of the world famous expert as a dry-as-dust sort of a fellow, interested in nothing but his specialty, and who deigns to indulge in any of the amusement fads which happen to be the vogue.

It would be surprising to many to know that an Einstein enjoys working out a jig-saw puzzle. A news dispatch the other day noted that Prof. A. H. Compton, who, with Dr. Millikan, knows more about the cosmic ray than any other living being, left the class room where he had been giving one of his most technical demonstrations in physics, to go to his old home in Wooster, Ohio, to play anagrams with his father. Prof. Hocking, who is now much in the news on account of the report of the Layman's Commission on Missions, of which he is chairman, is one of the great philosophers of the country. Yet, whenever he visits the town of his birth, he spends a whole evening with his mother and sister singing hymns as he used to do in the old home.

We are all human—at least most of us are; and the man who cannot leave his high thinking and research now and then, to share his life with those who never have soared as he has in the higher realms of thought and action, has lost much of the human touch. When men, such as those mentioned above, can play as the humblest play, we know that close and abstract research and thinking need not keep men out of touch with the things that some are inclined to believe are trivial and wasteful of precious time.

A DICTATORSHIP?

Things are looking toward a virtual dictatorship in the person of the President of the United States. We are not greatly surprised at this. Anyone who has been watching the drift of conditions in the country, and has noted the futile activity of Congress, must have been partly prepared for it.

Sometimes we have wondered if the very ones, who are anxious for the concentration of power in the hands of one man, have not aided in making Congress' action futile. We are confident that public opinion has been partially prepared through a concerted effort to break down public respect for our national law-making body.

Cartoons have appeared in many papers, with their shafts of alleged "witticisms;" humorists in their columns, and many editors have joined in the general assault. Some of them, we have no doubt, have done it ignorantly. But it is a serious matter in a republic like the United States, after all these decades, that the members of the national law-making body, which in a peculiar and direct way represents the citizens, are induced to divest themselves of power and propose that it be undertaken by a single individual.

For it should be remembered that when it is in an individual, in a sense there is little or no compromise. The one mind at last finally determines it. To be sure, there are forces behind that mind, and he may have his coterie upon whom he depends for guidance, but it is that in which the great danger lies.

It may be possible that we can still, after the 4th of March, function apparently in harmony with our usual method, if the large Democratic majority in both the House and the Senate can be forged into an instrument which will promptly execute the President's desires. Congress has done this, even with President Hoover, though it has not done it promptly. The reason why certain people see the necessity of it is because they see the need of a strong government. And the unified power is the strongest government.

Is it possible that Democracy, even in our great Western Republic, has been shattered on the rocks of conflict of economic interests, since it is in possession of a machine which has broken down, and that it cannot, through legislative action, either repair or direct properly when it is repaired?

Brokers who paid several hundred thousand dollars for their seats on the New York Stock Exchange can hardly be blamed if they don't get up to buy Kreuger & Toll when it sells at two dozen shares for a dollar.

RIDICULING THE SUPREME COURT

It is reported that Chief Justice Hughes is very much offended by the caricature of the Supreme Court in the popular musical comedy "Of Thee I Sing," which is now being played in Washington. In this comedy, the Supreme Court comes on the stage, clothed in black gowns, with whiskers almost trailing to the ground. They get into a huddle like a football team on the field to pass judgment on the child which has just been born in the White House. When the decision is rendered, they sing a ludicrous song and indulge themselves in a clog dance.

The scene is uproariously funny, and the audience is convulsed with laughter. There is nothing offensive about it. There is no more sanctity about a court than there is about the presidency. We never hear any one complain of the jokes on the president at the annual meeting of the Gridiron club. We would suggest that Mr. Hughes join the people in the laugh.

Drake Estate Bobs Up Again

That mythical $350,000,000 estate of Sir Francis Drake again bobs up in the news. This time England takes a hand in exposing the fraudulent nature of the whole business by deporting as an undesirable citizen an American who announced his intention of prosecuting a claim to the fortune.

For five years the California "blue-sky" commission has been active in warning the public against the collections of money to finance a campaign to recover the Drake fortune. Time and again it has warned investors that there is no Drake estate, no Drake heirs and no litigation pending to clear up the estate.

The State Department at Washington and British consulates have added their warnings against the fraud. Still the campaign to raise money has gone on. As lately as 1931 residents of Southern California were induced to put up $75,000 for a promise of a share in the vast estate.

Like the Spanish prisoner game, the story of the mythical Drake fortune seems destined to go on forever.

When Mountains Move

That moving mountain near Durango, Colo., is one of the most interesting natural phenomena that have popped into the news in a long time. A mountain of solid rock that refuses to stay put, the way a mountain should, but goes creaking and sliding about the countryside in a most insecure and volatile manner, is truly a nine-days' wonder—however menacing it may be to those who have to live right under its shadow.

Ordinarily we think of mountains as the most stable and unchangeable of all the earth's features. Any geologist, however, can tell you that their stability is only relative. They change, they grow and shrink, they crumble down, they move about quite restlessly; only their changes are measured in hundreds of centuries instead of in years.

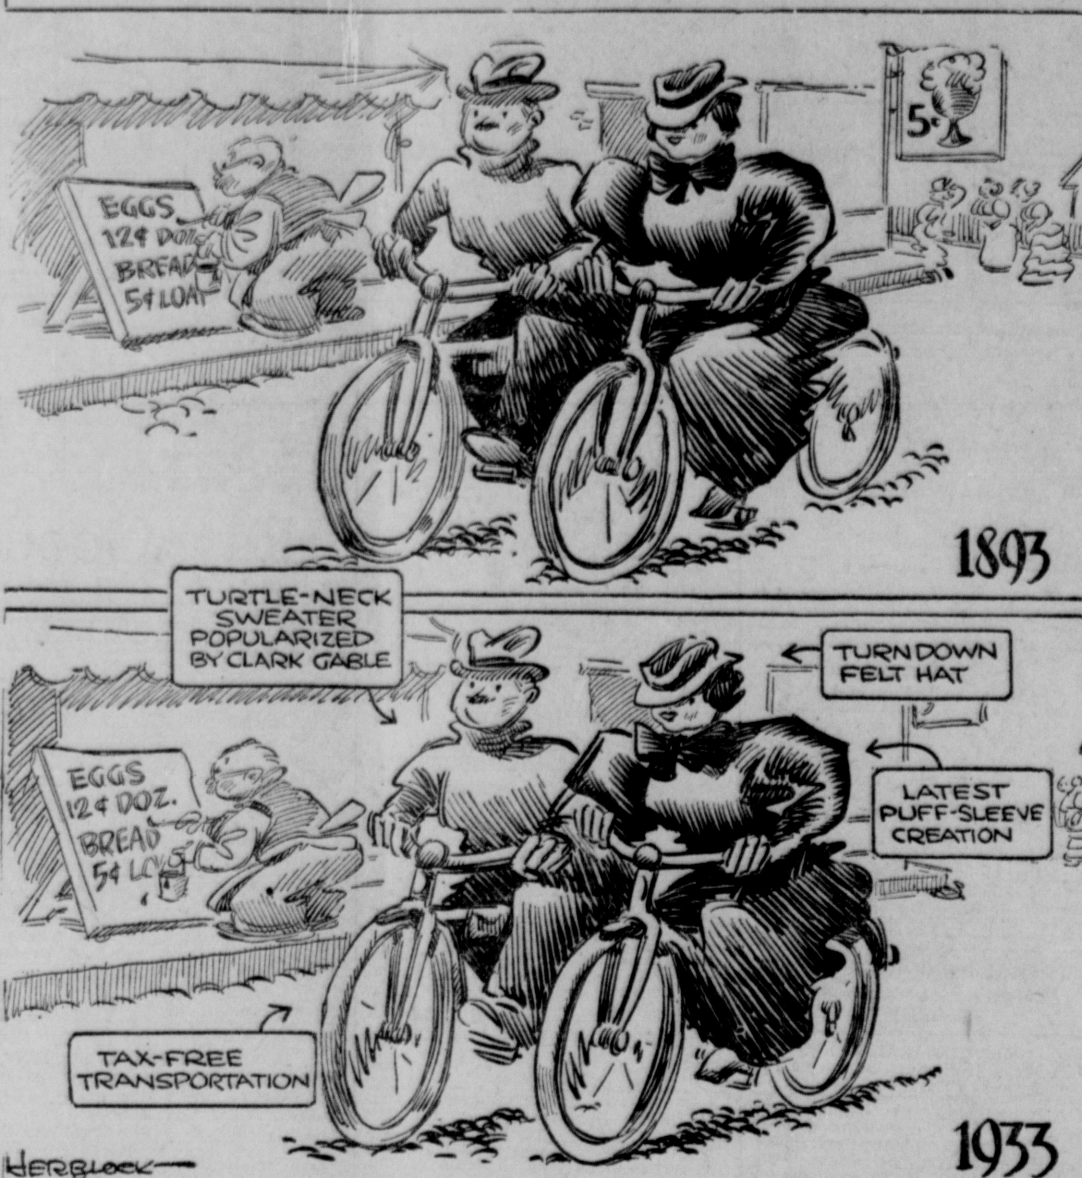

The antics of this Colorado mountain are an illustration. The Rockies are no more fixed and immutable than is the lower Mississippi delta.

Modes and Crises

In costumes and fashion the historians have sometimes professed to trace the records of civilizations. But it would be a very penetrating historian who could declare on the basis of internal evidence whether the following fashion note from Paris was written in February, 1929, or in February, 1933: "Fitted hips predominate. Sports belts rest on the hip bones. Wide bayaderes hip-sashes are notable. Loose afternoon coats give a Chinese effect. Nudist beach frocks in awning-striped cotton are split in front to the middle of the thigh."

Does this throw any light on war debts, unemployment, world trade, gold reserves, mortgage rates, Hitler, Machado? There is just a hint of the Manchukuo and the Lytton Report in the loose afternoon coats that give a Chinese effect.

More Truth Than Poetry

NO ESCAPE
It has been found that disease germs can rise as high, or higher, than airplanes.

When planes began to carry man
To dim and distant heights,
I thought that I might fly and by Sail forth on lofty flights.
And thus out-pace the swarming race
Of microscopic things,
Which give men chills and deadlier ills
With their malignant stings.

"Infection-proof I'll soar aloof Secure from harm," said I.
"The deadly germ can only squirm—
He lacks the means to fly.
When chill and rare becomes the air
He'll gulp and pant for breath,
And with a gasp his tummy clasp
And tumble to his death."

"We'll bring these germs at last to terms;
While winging toward the sky
In quest of prey that they may slay,
Whole swarms of them will die:
For bugs like these are quick to freeze
When far aloft they soar,
And soon, I hope, we'll have to cope
With microbe kind no more."

But I was wrong; this evil throng
Man battles quite in vain,
For they can rise to distant skies,
Outsailing any plane.
And should we climb, some future time,
Still higher in the air,
I'm quite inclined to think we'll find
Them waiting for us there.

I was just starting to go out yesterday afternoon and some lady called to see me with a little girl in brown leggings, and may I say, Benny, this is little Marina. I want you to entertain her while her mother and I have a little chat.

Marina's not very talkative, hee hee, the lady said, and she said, Benny can more than make up for that, I'm sure, hee hee.

Meaning I talk plenty, and I thank, Heck, gosh, thank the luck, just when I was going to go out.

And me and Marina went up in the living room, her being a funny looking kid with little eyes and a pointy nose with freckles on the end, and she proved she wasn't talkative by not saying anything.

And I thank, Heck, I wonder what to say to her?

Which I couldn't think of anything for a while and then I said, The lightning always comes before the thunder, did you know that?

What lightning? she said.

Proving she was dumb besides not being talkative, and nobody said anything for a while, me thinking, Heck, this is a fearful experience, and I have to keep on looking at her to make it worse.

And after a while I said, Butterflies live the longest, did you know that?

Where? she said, and I thank, Good night, this is getting fawst and fawst.

And pretty soon I said, Speaking of living, I've lived in this house all my life, only that hasn't been very long so far.

Which it hasn't, only it seemed longer every minute, and pretty soon I said, One time some of the plaster fell down off of this ceiling, and for all I know the whole ceiling may fall in any minute.

I'm going downstairs to mamma, Marina said. Which she did, me quick going out while I had the chance.

Announcement that E. H. McMath, former principal of Santa Ana High school, was planning to assume a post as manager of the San Francisco branch of the Los Angeles Industrial Loan and Development company, was of much local interest. McMath had left the Santa Ana schools to take up professorship of education at University of Southern California.

Horace McPhee, former publisher of the Santa Ana Blade and owner of the Chronicle at Santa Pansa, sold his time residence property, 925 French street, to T. J. Collins, a recent arrival from Nebraska.

Robert E. Reid, well-known citrus grower of Tustin, had formed a partnership with C. A. Davis in handling Chevrolet cars. Reid had been the first Santa Ana agent for Dodge cars, operating his business on North Main street.

Glenn Martin, well-known aviator, left for his home in Cleveland, Ohio, after a visit here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Martin.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

AMERICA AND THE LEAGUE

I was among the early exponents of the League of Nations in the United States.

I believed profoundly in its promise.

I have since freely criticized its timid and tentative handling of crucial matters.

But my criticisms always have been linked with the conviction that most of its manifest weaknesses have been directly due to America's apostasy to the dream that drove her millions into the war with a high heart.

I shall not attempt to assess the blame for that apostasy.

I wish that Mr. Wilson had been less compromising with European statesmen and more flexible with American politicians, but it is, perhaps, too much to expect perfection of mortal men. I am content to believe that, short of withdrawal from the Peace conference or a daring appeal to the masses of the world over the heads of their respective governments, even at the risk of revolutions here and there, Mr. Wilson did his best to tune the jangling interests of conflicting nationalisms into some sort of harmonious, even if halting approach to a new and better international order.

I do not undertake to defend the Treaty of Versailles Mr. Wilson brought back with him.

Its detailed terms did not blueprint the new world order we thought we were fighting for. The nations collaborating in its final draft did not, in its drafting, abandon the narrowly nationalistic policies they affected to disregard with such cavalier scorn during the war. Varied provisions of this treaty respecting race, trade, territory and political sovereignty flew in the face of the healing statecraft foreshadowed by Mr. Wilson and certain Allied statesmen in earlier pronouncements.

But, despite all this, the fact remains that in the League of Nations, imperfect and rudimentary as its covenant was, there was provided machinery for the progressive amendment of the treaty and a saner adjustment of international relations in the future.

In other words, in a treaty that was a product of the old statesmanship was imbedded an instrument that gave the new statesmanship its opportunity.

How we muffed that opportunity in America I shall discuss further tomorrow.

VERY MODERN

"Why don't you make that child stop yelling? If he wants to make that kind of noise he ought to go outdoors some place where no one else can hear him."

"I suggested that but he doesn't want to go outdoors. He seems to enjoy it more inside."

"But the rest of us aren't enjoying it. It's ridiculous, Josephine to allow a child to behave like that."

"I know you think so but this is the old idea, I am modern mother and I never compel my child to do anything he doesn't want to do."

"O, you don't. Well, all I have to say is that if you don't somebody else will and so much the worse for him. I'm going home. Where you ever got the notion that a child knew what was right and his aged parents and relatives were ignorant in the whole matter is beyond me. You had a proper rearing, I suppose if you want to ruin a child nobody can interfere. He is yours. But I warn you that he is going to be the sufferer. As it is he hasn't a friend among the family today."

That evening Josephine told the child's weary father that her mother had been in and because Sonny was playing Indian and whooping and beating his drum she got excited and went home in a fury.

"I can't say that I blame her. Why not make the kid behave himself in the house? After all he isn't the only one concerned, is he?"

"He is the most important one," said Josephine firmly. "I have made up my mind. I will never compel him to do anything just for other folk's convenience."

"Then you need not be surprised if the family leave you and him to enjoy the idea. I've been thinking lately that a little discipline might benefit him. He can scarcely grow up without knowing somebody or something to cross his will. I know I didn't."

It is not modern to spoil a child. It is an ancient idea. Josephine and her group are not the only ones who have tried to evade the rules of the game by ignoring them and calling their program advanced thought. Nor are the results modern. They too, bear the familiar marks of time and servitude. The wares of sin is death.

The child who is allowed to sin against his better self will have his share in the death of the spirit. The law is clear. No man can live alone. Each is tied to his neighbor and unless each of the long line lends himself to the happiness and well being of the whole there is distress and grief and the offender suffers most of all. Every man's hand is against him and there is no place for the sole of his foot.

It is fine to keep ahead of the procession but keeping ahead does not mean losing the way. There are fixed landmarks. There are rules and regulations and customs that bind the pilgrims. There are principles of living that are ignored under severe penalty. There was never a graver error than that which betrays a child to his undoing through untutored selfishness.

A NEW MAN

A kindly cottager took pity on the half-starved tramp and gave him a square meal.

"You said you were too weak from starvation to work when you first came here," she said. "Surely after the good dinner I've given you you feel equal to doing something in return."

The well-satisfied tramp leaned back in his chair and sighed happily.

"Madam," he said, "your dinner has done me so much good that I feel more than equal to work; I feel superior to it!"—Answers.
